ARMY PLANS TO EVACUATE 500,000

Fresh Food, Vegetable Prices Double in Week As Aftermath of Freeze

S. A. MARKETS ARE HIT BY INCREASE

Stores Forced to Pay High Figure to Get Their Supplies

BY BOB GUILD
A ghost came out of the past to haunt Santa Ana householders today.

He is 10 years old and a familiar sight—his name is High Cost of Living.

It costs more to live today.
Potatoes cost more, fruit costs more, and the lowly vegetable stew no longer is a shanty-town delight. It's a piece-de-resistance of no mean proportions.

Tour of Markets
Many prices of fresh food and vegetables have doubled in a week!
A tour of Santa Ana markets today revealed the following results:

Meats and many grocery staples have remained almost static in price, despite the cold wave and ship strike. A few canned goods have raised slightly in price, notably pineapple and fruits—traceable to effects of the maritime strike.

Milk, butter and eggs, flour and sugar remain about the same, with only the ordinary fluctuations in wholesale price.

Vegetable Counter
But over at the vegetable counter:

Lettuce your grocery man paid
$2.60 a crate for only last Friday cost him $4 a crate today.

Small crates of celery costing $1 a week ago cost $2 today.

Cauliflower, 90 cents a crate 10 days ago, is $2 a crate today.

Peas bought a week ago for 4½ cents a pound cost the grocery man 10 cents a pound today.

Potatoes—a week ago $2.50 a sack, today they are $3.75 a sack.

Cabbage which cost $1 a crate
Friday costs $2 a crate today.

Oranges Triple
The only cheap thing left on the vegetable market is the carrot—the price a week ago was 85 cents a crate, and it's 85 cents a crate today.

Local oranges have tripled in price—and at that they are oranges picked before the freeze wrecked havoc in the groves. A box that cost $1.25 a week ago costs $3 or more today.

It is impossible to buy spin-ach, artichokes or other of the seasonal vegetables. Tomatoes come from Mexico and cost 12 cents a pound. Avocados which were picked before the freeze are all that are left, and the price is skyrocketing.

The ghost of 1926 has come back to haunt the grocery store.

Pope Has New Attack of Pain

VATICAN CITY. (P)—Pope Pius XI suffered new attacks of pain during the early morning.
Vatican attendants reported today, but they failed to nullify completely the hopeful improvement over last week's suffering.

Singer Knifed by Tibbett Dies

NEW YORK. (P)—True to the tradition of the stage, Lawrence Tibbett sang for a Newark audience last night while saddened by the death of Joseph Sterzini, veteran Metropolitan Opera basso, five hours after Tibbett accidentally had inflicted a slight stab wound.

Hospital attaches said Sterzini's death probably had been caused by a blood clot.

The 52-year-old Sterzini collapsed on the stage of the Metropolitan Opera House as a company of 100 rehearsed "Capone's" in which Tibbett sings the role of Guido Franchini.

Sterzini, who had sung in the chorus for 28 years, was required by his role to hold another singer

Confesses Murder But Officers Won't Believe Him

When a man walked into the district attorney's office in Modesto yesterday and confessed murdering a Placencia man in 1932, there was considerable excitement.

Harold Poe, telling deputies in Modesto that his conscience bothered him, said he had shot and killed J. C. Johnson in Placencia four years ago after Johnson had caused Poe to lose his job. Johnson had been listed as a suicide.

Sheriff's officers here, however, found that the Johnson case was an authentic suicide and that although Poe's story about losing his job was correct, he was not responsible for Johnson's death.

SABOTAGE ON TRAINS TOLD

Soviet Plotter Tells About Thousands of Wrecks He Caused

MOSCOW. (P)—Ivan Alexan-drovich Kniazeff, former Soviet Southern railway chief on trial as a confessed Trotskyist plotter, testified today 63 persons had been killed in "thousands" of train wrecks which he organized, and accused a Japanese, "Mr. X," of planning to infect Russian troop trains with deadly germs.

Kniazeff twice identified "Mr. X"
as a Japanese agent, one Hiroshima, who he said was a transport expert in Moscow and who formerly resided in London.

Springs Surprises
The witness, on trial with the commentator Karl Radek and 15 other men for a conspiracy to overthrow the Soviet regime through sabotage and even war, sprang surprise after surprise.

Confessing abjectly to some 3500 train wrecks during 1935 and 1936, he said they had killed 63 persons and injured 164.

He identified photostatic copies of two letters which he said he received from "Mr. X" in 1935 and 1936, the first demanding documentary evidence to be introduced.

Confirming orders he said he had received in December of 1935 to burn military stores, Kniazeff declared.

Planned Infection
"When I met Mr. X later, he reproached me for doing nothing.
He said people had to be trained to commit wrecking in wartime."

He also told me to burn food trains and in October (presumably in 1935) Mr. X told me we might have to poison military trains with bacteria so as to infect the troops.

"Mr. X said war was inevitable.
I understood from him it would start in 1936."

Sergei Sedoff, second son of Leon Trotsky, was reported arrested today upon the denunciation of factory workers at Krasnyarsk, where there was alleged to have been an attempt to poison employees with generator gas.

DAM PROJECT BLOCKED BY FLOODS

Report on Local Program
Not Yet Received, Says
Washington Envoy

Floods which are spreading disaster over the United States are holding up Orange county's $15-000,000 flood control program.

This startling information was received by Supervisor Willard Smith in two telegrams from George Malone, engineer-in-charge of Orange county at Washington, D.
C., yesterday afternoon.

Malone pointed out in his telegrams that the U. S. army engineers are spending all of their time and efforts to assist in the control of the floods which have caused millions of dollars in property damage throughout the nation.

Report Awaited
For that reason, Orange county's flood control program, considered not as pressing, must wait.

Malone said the report on the Orange county flood control project from district army engineers in California has not yet arrived.

This was news to local officials, who thought the plan was in the hands of the army engineers at Washington. It was indicated that the plan has been passed back and forth between Los Angeles and San Francisco army engineer headquarters.

To Return Sunday
It was Malone's belief that the report would be in Washington before he left. He announced that he would return by plane next Sunday, having contacted all the officials necessary, and because it will be Feb. 15 at least before serious consideration is given to the final steps necessary before Orange county's project can be launched.

Malone indicated that the matter of Orange county receiving $15,000 a year for maintenance of Newport Harbor would be given attention at the same time.

U. S. CITIZENS FLEE MALAGA

VALENCIA. (P)—American residents were reported by the British consulate today to be evacuating the Socialist port of Malaga in the path of an advancing Fascist southern army.

The consul here confirmed reports that a British destroyer had rescued and carried to Gibraltar all but four United States citizens and 12 British nationals from the area where government forces are battling to prevent capture of the strategic harbor.

SOCIALISTS RESIST DRIVE NEAR MADRID

chine guns and bombs, halted a threatened insurgent advance today in the El Fardo sector, five miles from the capital's northern gate.

Is 78 Today

DOORN, The Netherlands. (P)— Former Kaiser Wilhelm of Germany celebrated his 78th birthday today, alone with his memories.
The heaviest snowfall in many years confined the former ruler to his retreat in exile, under doctor's orders to remain indoors until fully recovered from a recent influenza attack.

LOBBY PLAN BRAWL KILLS TOTTERING BEACH MAN

An Unofficial Discussion
by Officials Shows Opinion Divided

A silent and unofficial death may be dealt the proposition of Orange county donating $500 toward hiring a lobbyist to represent this and other counties at Sacramento.

The Journal learned from an authoritative source today that the matter came to the attention of the board of supervisors "informally" yesterday, although it was not broached at an open session.

Board Divided
It was also learned that the board of supervisors is divided on the matter, some holding that the county's elected representatives at Sacramento should be able to take care of Orange county's interests, others that the representatives do not have a chance to study thoroughly each bill affecting the counties.

It is possible that the matter of Orange county's helping to finance the movement, sponsored by the State Supervisors' association, will be up again at next week's meeting of the board of supervisors.

Chairman Willard Smith, who received a letter from the state association of supervisors asking for the $500 donation, explained that the plan to hire special counsel to represent the supervisors at Sacramento is to keep tab on bills which come up and which affect county government.

In Ventura county, County Auditor J. Hyde Chaffee announced yesterday that he will hold up payment of a $500 claim anticipated from the state capital at Sacramento for the expenses of a county lobbyist. The Ventura board of supervisors had allocated $500 to help pay the expenses of the same lobbyist which Orange county has been asked to help finance.

Heavy Blow
"Too good to drink with me, eh?" they quoted Jones as saying. Then, they reported, Clary was felled with a heavy blow and Jones walked out. Clary, unconscious, was given first aid by the batter and taken to the county hospital, where he died at 3:30
a. m. today.

Coroner Earl Abbey and Deputy Coroner Bert Casteln were preparing for an inquest into the death.

SHIP STRIKE IS NEARING END

SAN FRANCISCO. (P)—Complicated issues in the 90-day Pacific coast maritime strike today narrowed to two major questions which one union leader said may possibly be settled within 48 hours.

The disputed points were on the handling of the cargo of coastwise ships and on wage demands of clerks and checkers affiliated with longshoremen.

Harry Lundberg, head of the Sailors' Union, told a meeting called by Mayor Angelo J. Rossi:
"I believe this thing is pretty close to settlement, possibly within 48 hours."

Mayor Rossi agreed, after listening to reports from union and shipowners' representatives, that at least tentative accords appeared near.

Hitler Plans to Oust Reichstag

BERLIN. (P)—Chancellor Adolf Hitler was reported today in inner Nazi circles to be preparing to dissolve the reichstag in its present bulky form when it convenes Saturday.

Although official confirmation was not obtainable, these circles said they expected Hitler would declare the state no longer needs a body of 741 men existing only to act as a sounding board for der fuhrer's special pronouncements.

Piccard to Try 'Strato' Hop
With 2000 Small Balloons

NEW YORK. (P)—Plans of Prof. Jean Piccard to fly into the stratosphere with a single bunch of 2000 small balloons substituted for a giant gas bag were announced today to the Institute of the Aeronautical Sciences.

The professor is assumed of going up easily, possibly three to five miles higher than man ever ascended, but his coming down depends to quite an extent on the law of averages. Some of his balloons will have to burst before he can descend.

With 2000 of them, it is calculated by experiments with single small balloons, they can't all explode simultaneously. Enough of them, perhaps several hundred, are expected to let go at a new

HEAD OF G. M. REPLIES TO REBUKES

Sloan Denies Company Responsibility for Negotiations' End

NEW YORK. (P)—Alfred P.
Sloan, jr., president of General Motors, today denied that the company "is responsible for the breakdown of negotiations" with workers and reiterated the company's refusal to negotiate until the plants occupied by sit-down strikers are evacuated.

In a statement addressed jointly to the public and to loyal workers in General Motors plants, Sloan referred to the sit-down strikers as "these trespassers who have seized the plants and who have taken from you the privilege of working."

"We will negotiate with this group and will earnestly strive for an honorable settlement as soon as the illegal seizure of our plants is terminated."

His Statement
While he did not refer specifically to the rebuke issued yesterday by President Roosevelt, he did say:
"Efforts have been made to make you believe that General Motors is responsible for the breakdown of negotiations; that we refuse to meet with representatives of our own employees; that we are shirking our moral responsibility; that we have no respect for the public interest."

"You know this is not true, so why all these charges? Simply because we refuse to negotiate with a group that holds our plants for ransom without regard to law or justice, thus depriving over 100,000 of our peaceful and law-abiding employees of their inherent right to work."

REPORTS PROGRESS

WASHINGTON. (P)—Secretary
Perkins said today that her conference with John L. Lewis and other spokesmen for General Motors strikers "developed a situation which will make a settlement quite possible if the third party consents."

She said the meeting with the strike leaders had made "progress" and that "action may be developed as the result of information received."

Claim Oil Taken
The Standard claims that the Southern California Drilling company slant-drilled its wells from the Sevens property into the reputedly wealthy Standard reserve and that it has extracted large quantities of high test crude oil as a result of its operations since drilling started in December, 1932.

The question as to whether the Southern California Drilling company well is slanted under the Standard property and tapping the rich state tideland oil pool may be involved in this case, observers said.

ESOLA NAMED TO PAROLE BOARD

SACRAMENTO. (P)—Governor
Merriam today announced the appointment of Fred L. Esola, San Francisco, to the board of prison terms and paroles to succeed Frank O. Sykes, for the term ending Jan. 15, 1941. The job pays $5,000 a year.

Esola is a former San Francisco police executive. He was once a member of the federal bureau of investigation and was United States marshal for the northern district of California under Presidents Coolidge and Hoover.

Body of Woman Found in Surf

LOS ANGELES. (P)—The practically nude body of a woman about 35 was found floating in the surf near Redondo Beach today.

Capt. A. L. Hopkins and O. C.
Cole of the Redondo police who recovered the body said it apparently had been in the water for about a week.

Here's Smudge in Your Eye!

"Smudging comes within the definition of a tolerant nuisance. It's both good and bad. There is reason to believe that chemists will in time be able to reduce the volume of smoke so the operation of heaters may be
million dollars crop does offer some compensation, even in the face of an admitted inconvenience and damage.
There has been an improvement in heaters. Further improvement will be welcome."—Skinny Skirvin in his own private column on the editorial page.

COUNTY MAY SECURE C. C. BUILDING

A special committee was named by Chairman Willard Smith of the board of supervisors yesterday afternoon to investigate the situation arising from lapse of the lease on quarters in the courthouse annex occupied by the Santa Ana Chamber of Commerce.

Supervisors N. E. West and John Mitchell were named to contact chamber officials, possibly to negotiate for purchase of the building now occupied by the chamber. Supervisor Harry D. Riley suggested that the county negotiate for purchase of the building, which some members of the board think could be used to house county offices.

Dollar a Year
District Attorney W. F. Menton reported on the status of a lease held on the property by the chamber. He said it was signed in March, 1925, and was to run for 10 years with the chamber paying one dollar a year for the lease on the property. The chamber, he said, has paid taxes on the land, and all other expenses, including liens, water, lights, gas, etc.

Menton said the county owns only the land, and that the building belongs to the chamber and could be removed from the premises if the county feels that it needs the room. Provision of the lease, he said, were that if the chamber occupied the quarters for more than 10 years, tenancy could be terminated after a four-months period if written notice were given the chamber.

Suggests Renewal
The lease could be terminated by 30 days written notice on the part of either chamber or county, he said.

Supervisor Riley suggested that West see about the matter. Supervisor Steele Finley said the county needs the space, but he didn't want the job of contacting the chamber. He suggested that the lease be renewed, or "something be done about the matter."

Townsend News, Views

By WALTER R. ROBB

(This is a non-political, non-partisan column, dealing in Townsend news and views, and written by a prominent Townsend leader. Any opinions which are expressed herein are not necessarily those of The Journal.)

Last night's Townsend Virginia baked ham dinner served by Santa Ana club No. 2 was well patronized considering the number of Townsend folk and others who are laid up with the influenza. Better than 90 dinners were served during the evening. The Hurd-Lentz orchestra put over a fine concert following the dinner, and Herbert F. Kenny led the gathering in a business session in a period of community singing.

P. R. Long, president, was introduced, presided over the business session. The following convention delegates reported the highlights of the convention as they saw it: Mrs. P. R. Long, E. F. Mallard and Walter R. Robb. Afterwards Kenny, newly elected member of the district board, gave a resume of the new national and district organization set-up. He stressed in particular the far reaching changes from a democratic standpoint that would now be operating in the 19th district Townsend movement.

Anaheim club met in its Townsend club building at 210 South Clementine last evening. In the absence of Mrs. H. C. Int, who is ill, Dr. Harry C. Williams, vice president, was in charge of the meeting. Mrs. F. A. Sager, club secretary, was also absent because of sickness in the home. J. S. Freeman, Jim Hildreth and Mrs. F. A. Sager were the delegates from this club who attended the convention in Riverside. They reported on the convention.

Roy Webb, former district organizer of the Townsend movement in the 19th district, is back in the district again. He was the speaker last evening at a Townsend club gathering in Riverside. The writer hasn't learned whether he is back permanently or not. A number of clubs are planning of having him as a speaker in the near future, including the Anaheim club.

Sam G. Borum, son of Mrs. May W. Borum, of Tustin, is convalescing in the Santa Ana Valley hospital from an operation performed last Friday. Donaldson and Steen were the physicians in charge. Borum, who lives in Flagstaff, Ariz., at last reports was making rapid recovery. His wife is stopping at the Mrs. May W. Borum home in Tustin during his convalescence. The patient's mother was a delegate to the Townsend convention Saturday.

J. F. Robison, one of the active Townsends of the Stanton club, reported to the writer that his son, P. C. Robison of 5205 East Olive street, Walnut, Calif., has but recently undergone a very serious operation. He is in the Clara Barton hospital in Los Angeles, and making as rapid recovery as could be expected. The patient is the traveling representative of a company in Los Angeles. He is well known to the trade in this county handling his company's products. His many customers in these parts and the Townsends friends of his father will join together in hoping for his speedy recovery. His mother, Mrs. J. F. Robison, is stopping with the daughter-in-law in Walnut while young Robison is mending.

The company for which the younger Robison travels had an experience during the months of September and October, 1936, resulting from the spending of the approximate $2,000,000,000 of the soldier's bonus money, which should make every business concern stop and think seriously of the Townsend plan benefits likely to accrue to them, if it becomes a law. During the month of September the company sold and delivered $64,000 worth of its products, which was the largest volume of business the company had ever enjoyed in the 48 years of its history. In October the volume of business was still larger. The writer cannot help commenting that if one injection into the channels of trade of $2,000,000,000 can result in such trade increases as this incident illustrates, then it is reasonable to presume that when a similar amount of money is turned loose every month by the Townsend plan, that a continuous prosperity will likely accrue to the business world.

Carter to Face Forgery Charge

Already charged with one count of fictitious checks, George U. Carter, 48, salesman of 414 Bush street, found himself again in the clutches of the law today. He was rearrested on a forgery charge, booked at the county jail, and released on his own recognizance by Justice Kenneth Morrison pending preliminary hearing. He is charged in a complaint signed by A. J. Brown with forging the name of L. Barnes to a bad check for $14.73.

DRIVER BOOKED

Howard Brown, 40-year-old La Habra farmer, was booked on drunk driving charges at the county jail last night by California Highway patrol officers.

Texas led all other states in AAA rental and benefit payments, receiving about 11 per cent of the national total.

ATTEND CHURCH CONVENTION

The Rev. O. Scott McFarland, pastor of the First Presbyterian church here, with George Lewis, lay representative, attended the meeting of the Los Angeles Presbytery in that city yesterday. The Presbytery adopted a resolution favoring retention of California's three-day marriage license law.

Dr. McFarland, chairman of the united promotion committee, announced that the Presbytery has approved a benevolence budget of $100,000 for the year.

The Rev. Hampton B. Hawes, negro pastor of Westminster Presbyterian church, Los Angeles, was elected moderator to serve for six months.

ROTARIANS SEE AUTO FILM

With Willard McCain, local automobile executive, as program chairman, local Rotarians at their luncheon in Masonic temple yesterday witnessed a talking film on the motorcar industry.

Roy Sims, real estate broker, was introduced as a new member of the club, receiving the code of ethics from Joel Ogle, Santa Ana attorney.

Veterans Enjoy Potluck Dinner

Campfire camp and auxiliary of the United States War Veterans had a joint pot-luck dinner last night in the Knights of Columbus hall, with Charles I. Reagan, commander, acting as master of ceremonies.

Mrs. Marie White of the speakers' bureau of the adult education department presented a review of "Gone With the Wind." Instrumental music by a Mexican trio completed the program.

POLICE REPORTS

Catching fire suddenly at Seventeenth and Maybrough streets, a fumigating truck driven by E. E. Barney of Anaheim was almost completely destroyed yesterday afternoon.

Long Beach police, attempting to locate Gil Laub, who formerly lived here at 2113 Orange avenue, asked officers here to attempt to locate him. They reported he had moved away last February and left no forwarding address. Long Beach police said Laub's car had been found abandoned there.

When neighbors reported someone was shooting at smudge pots on North Bristol street near the Santiago creek, officers went out to investigate. They found two boys, aged 13 and 15, holding a premature July 4 celebration by shooting firecrackers.

Charged with drunk driving after his arrest at First street and Santa Fe avenue, Harold D. Sowards, 33, gardener of 1118 East First street, was booked at the county jail last night. A medical examination pronounced him moderately intoxicated.

City court traffic fines: Drunk driving—Paul Canaday, $150, committed. Speeding—Myron Oscar Guilbert, $8. Boulevard stop—E. G. Plummer, $2; Charles Page, $2.

DEATH CLAIMS C. L. LESLIE

Complications from a common cold today had caused the death of Charles C. L. Leslie, well-known Orange county rancher for the past 40 years and central figure in a heated court battle here last month.

Mr. Leslie died Monday night at his home in Los Angeles, 767 Garland street, according to word received here by R. D. Flaherty, secretary of the farm bureau. Funeral services will be conducted Friday at 1:30 p. m. from the Wee Kirk of the Heather, Forest Lawn Memorial park, Glendale.

Mr. Leslie lost his large ranch after a spirited foreclosure suit, last month, although he had a purchaser in court ready to buy the property. The deadline had passed for payment on a mortgage held by the Federal Finance company. He moved to Los Angeles from his North Flower street property approximately 10 years ago after being engaged in citrus ranching here for more than 40 years.

Fishermen Attack Market Problem

Behind closed doors, commercial fishermen of Newport harbor met last night to further consider their plans for organization.

Organization must come, it was emphasized by many of the men. No money has been made by local boats for more than a month, they said, and the alleged threat of closing markets at nearby ports makes a union of Newport harbor fishermen an immediate necessity, it was believed.

Weather conditions have been mainly responsible for poor catches in the last month, it was agreed, and no improvement was looked for until the return of warm days.

"There's plenty of fish outside," they say, "but they just won't bite."

Canneries last night ran the coopers less than 75 minutes, managers said. Average boat hauls ran less than 100 pounds of mackerel. Very little bonita was brought in.

Feed Men Hear of State Regulations

Orange county feed and fuel dealers were better informed on state requirements in regard to sale of commodities they handle today, following a meeting of the dealers here at Daniger's.

L. M. Jeffers, chief of the bureau of field crops of the state department of agriculture and Jack Strommer, secretary of the California Hay, Grain and Feed Dealers association, were speakers at the meeting. Jeffers outlined the various interpretations of state laws governing sale of feed and fuel.

A. N. Zerman, Santa Ana, president, presided at the meeting, attended by 14 dealers. R. B. Newcom, Santa Ana, is secretary of the Orange county group.

NAME SUPERINTENDENT

Claude R. Allin was named superintendent of the Buena Park water district yesterday afternoon by the board of supervisors. Motion to appoint Allin was made by Supervisor Harry D. Riley. Allin will receive a salary of $75 a month.

Laid to Rest

ILLENE STEED

Funeral services were held today at the Winbiger chapel for Miss Illene Steed, who died Sunday as a result of a fall at her home here. Miss Steed, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Amasa Merlin Steed, 432 South Broadway, was queen of the 1936 Gold and Green ball arranged by organizations affiliated with the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints. She was prominent in activities of the church and this year acted as director of publicity of the M.I.A. association of the church. She also has acted as president of the Gleaner Girls.

MONEY, CHALK OR MARBLES

Comes a wrestling publicity writer who says a good wrestler can top a topnotch fighter any time they meet—and means it.

Tige Clinton got mad at me. I said something about him he didn't like, so he got mad at me. He misunderstood, and he wrote me a letter as follows:

"For the moment you almost had me stopped, Pally, and I mean nothing but stopped. But I've recovered and still believe wrestling is the tops sports promotion in the man's sport."

"Monday evening, old pal, you intimated that something must have happened to me because I missed my daily wrestling blasts on day."

"Could you have meant that I had not only slipped but fallen completely off the sprinkling cart, Pal?"

"Well, not a chance. The smudge got me, Pal, last Friday, and I missed, but aside from that and still pouncing the pavement or walking to get money, marbles or chalk that any good wrestler can beat a topnotch fighter anytime they start."

"When I first started writing wrestling publicity, among other things, I learned one thing, always on hand with a jar because you never could tell when a sports editor was going to break down and use your stuff, and when he was going to toss it in the nearby waste basket. It's about the only physical exercise a sports editor ever gets—firing copy in a basket, or plucking some lesser mug in the newsroom behind the ear with it—so why not let him have his fun and his exercise."

"Besides, you never can tell when your yarn is 'hotter copy' than last year's batting average and may make the top line even in midweek."

"You know, Paul, when a mug believes as I do, that wrestling is tops, and a real sport, even though there are those who differ, you'll have to forgive him, like you sympathize with all guys and dolls who are a little tetchy in the head."

"Meanwhile there's a lot of fire burning under the wrestling pot and I'll be shooting both barrels at you soon, so Pal get ready to duck. Kindest personal regards, and a hello to that guy Fisher in the backroom."

TIGE.

"P. S. Fisher's the sucker who ruined my whole career, and really got me to think there isn't a Santa Claus after all. The big dummy!"

FOOTBALL ENDS OFFICIALLY

Fifteen Saints celebrate the end of a disastrous season next week. Fifteen Saints and Danny Frias will get their letters for the past football season.

Coach Bill Fote will do his stuff at a high school assembly. The season was disastrous from the standpoint of games won and lost, but a real godsend in another direction. It opened the eyes of the boys, faculty and coaching staff. It pointed the way to a little de-emphasizing of football here at home, with the recession of Santa Ana from the coast league.

Center Don Warhurst tops the list of letter-winners, with 297 playing minutes of football to his credit last fall. Guard Bob Maddeck was second, with 392 minutes, and Tackle Ferris Wall followed, with 330 minutes. Here are the rest:

Bill Musick, 307; Len Stafford, 277; Larry Stump, 253; Hal Tucker, 253; Dwight Nott, 237; Joe Kadowaki, 225; Al Patterson, 212; Mitsuo Nitta, 206; Mark Stewart, 185; Vernon Carney, 167; Jack McClure, 129, and Milton Smith, 103.

ROUND AND ABOUT

Take the case of Michigan State. So many baseballers advanced the old strike-out alibi of not having the right bat that Coach John Kobs asked a representative of a bat manufacturing company to provide a complete display of the big sticks. All candidates for the team were told to "choose their weapons." The alibi is shot.

Johnny Whitaker, captain of the Minnesota grunt-and-growlers, never wrestled before he was a sophomore. Then he bought a book about grappling, and made a scientific approach to the game. He took third place in the Big Ten conference as a sophomore, and is out for the championship this year. He does not carry his book on holds into the ring.

Feminine Champs Of Two States Meet Today

LOS ANGELES. (AP)—Two state champions of the Pacific coast—Mrs. Rose Eva Oregon, and Miss Peggy Graham, California—match golfing strokes today in the second round of the Los Angeles Country Club's invitational tournament.

The women's links titlist from Portland played sensationally yesterday in defeating Mrs. Estelle Steele of San Gabriel, nine up. On the first nine, where par is 38, Mrs. Eva recorded 37.

Miss Graham, tournament medalist, planned five and four loss on Mrs. Bernice Woerner of Los Angeles, playing consistent if not brilliant golf.

114 Named for Closing Arcadia Event; Film Stars Represented

LOS ANGELES.—Smashing all records for track rivalry, 114 thoroughbreds have been named for the $2,500 Santa Barbara championship for two-year-olds, to be run at the close of the season at Santa Anita March 3.

The event, won last year by Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt's Air-Flame, will see his horse and white diamond silks carried among other, by the fleet Balking.

Movie Colony

This speedy miss equaled Air-Flame's world record of 33.8 flat for three furlongs on the occasion of her first out at Santa Anita.

The movie colony will be represented by its growing stable. Bing Crosby has nominated Fight On, surprise winner last week at the astounding odds of 160 to 2, and his San Diego, Joe E. Brown had named six horses for the event, including Battling Kate, Kay Em Bee, Royal Kate, Math, Maori Princess and Pre.

Mr. Bones' Debut

The real battle, however, is expected to be fought between the Mrs. Vera S. Bragg, Norman W. Church, Mrs. C. S. Howard, Whitney and Vanderbilt stables, with Balking probably going to the post favorite.

This afternoon saw the debut of Mr. Bones, of the J. H. Whitney stable, in the Alhambra handicap. Mr. Bones drew top weight of 122 pounds for the race, restricted to three-year-olds and upward. Johnny Gray was to ride.

Trumphy, with Workman up, was given 113 pounds, and Appealing, ridden by McDermott, received 110.

ABIE MILLER HOLDS TITLE

LOS ANGELES. (AP)—Abie Miller, Los Angeles veteran, kept his state welterweight championship today by reason of a ten-round slam-bang victory over Billy Barnes, Salt Lake City youngster.

On the verge of being knocked out in the seventh round, Miller rallied furiously to defend his California crown last night. His right cross to the chin floored Barnes in the eighth for the count of five but he still trailed, according to Referee Jack Kennedy's scoring, four rounds to three with one even.

Exhausted but undaunted, Miller swapped punches with Barnes during the last two rounds and won them by a shade. He collapsed as the referee raised his hand.

Miller weighed 147, Barnes 142. Ralph Carpenter, Oklahoma heavyweight, administered a body beating to Chet Shandel, Oakland, Calif., in winning the six-round semi-windup. Carpenter, 200, had a five-pound weight advantage of Shandel, who recently knocked out George Theodoratos, Sacramento ex-collegian.

NEW YORK. (AP)—Babe Ruth and Joe McCarthy are still nursing their old feud . . . Joe gave a dinner to the New York baseball writers night before last . . . All good American leaguers were there . . . but the Babe was not invited . . . "Guess McCarthy's still sore," chuckled Ruth today . . . Joe's backers say the fight started over the Babe's feeling that he should manage the Yankees instead of McCarthy . . . Incidentally, the notion that Ruth's bitter about not getting a big league manager's job is strictly bunk . . . Colonel Ruppert's refusal to let him go to the National league when the Reds wanted him rankled a little, but he knows now his chances of getting a major league shout are slim.

LEARNS HERE--TEACHES GAMES TO CHINESE

WASHINGTON. (AP)—Having finished a tour of European nations, Shou Y. Tung, coach of the Chinese Olympic basketball team, is visiting 25 major American universities to study their sports programs.

For 20 years Tung has taught athletics to the young men of Tung learned athletics under an American instructor in China and after several years of coaching he came to Springfield, Mass., college for two years of further sports study. He was proficient in all sports and three times represented China as a player in the Far East Olympics. The basketball team he has coached have beaten their Japanese rivals 17 times out of 20 contests.

The Chinese army has a department of sports and physical education and it was Tung who sold the idea to the commanding general. Now Tung's aides supervise the sports program of 30,000 soldiers.

SHOU Y. TUNG

China. Like veteran American football coaches, he has seen his pupils become sports mentors throughout that country. There is hardly a sizeable high school in China whose coach was not taught by Tung.

He is head of the physical education department as the National Normal university in Peiping and for years has coached the Chinese basketball teams for the Far Eastern Olympic Games.

"Although sports are comparatively new in China," he explains, "almost every large high school has athletic teams and coaches."

OXY STAR LOST FOR SEASON

LOS ANGELES. (AP)—Captain Jerry Iselt, century and furlong champion of the Southern California conference for two years, was lost to the Occidental College track team today for an indefinite period.

Two broken bones in his right foot, suffered in an accidental collision with a basketball player in the Oxy gym, will keep Iselt out of training for at least eight weeks, it was announced.

Oxy's first meet of the season is with University of Southern California February 20.

SAN JOSE LOSES

KUHN IS IRON MAN OF S. C. ELEVEN

Placentia Boy Played 451 Minutes; Three Get Life Passes

LOS ANGELES.—Twenty-seven University of Southern California athletes will receive the "S. C." monogram for participation in football last season, it was announced today by Director of Athletics Willis O. Hunter, following a vote on awards by the general athletic committee.

Three of the letter winners—Capt. Gil Kuhn, Dave Davis and Max Belko—will receive awards for the third straight year and will be presented with gold life passes to all Trojan athletic contests. Other seniors on the award list are Jim Henderson, Joe Wilensky, Homer Beatty and Laurence (Bud) Langley.

The time chart shows that for the second straight year Kuhn led for "iron man" honors with 451 minutes on the field out of a possible 540 in the nine S. C. games. Because of Coach Howard Jones' two-team plan with its frequent substitutions, Kuhn was the only Trojan to play all of any game. He played the full 60 minutes against both Washington State and U. C. L. A. Don McNeil, with 327 minutes to his credit, was second in playing time to Kuhn.

Trojan sweater awards were voted for the following men: Ends—Gene Hibbs, Glendale; Ralph Stanley, Los Angeles; Ray Wehba, Oklahoma City; Chuck Williams, Compton, and Jim Henderson, Glendale. Tackles—Don McNeil, Los Angeles; Ray George, Los Angeles; Miles Norton, Santa Ana; and Max Belko, Gary, Ind. Guards—Bill Radovich, Los Angeles; Earl Haas, Canton, O.; Owen Hansen, Los Angeles; Raphael Brosseau, Los Angeles; Ray Halvorsen, Hollywood, and Joe Wilensky, Los Angeles. Centers—Gil Kuhn, Placentia, and Tony Tonelli, Thomas, W. Va.

Quarterbacks—Dave Davis, Martinez, and Ambrose Schindler, San Diego. Halfbacks—Coye Dunn, San Diego; Phil Radowski, Los Angeles; Lynn (Beane) Russell, Oklahoma City; Homer Beatty, Bakersfield, and Bud Langley, Corona. Fullbacks—Jimmy Jones, Los Angeles; Dick Berryman, Long Beach, and Angelo Peccianti, Martinez.

Those who saw him against Eddie Sims, who was knocked out in a round by Louis last December, figure Bob has just one chance. Against Sims he hit the deck five times, bounced up and kept on throwing punches until he earned a draw. The theory is that if he wades in there swinging, he may land first and land hard enough to stop Louis, or at least take some of the dynamite out of the Bomber's blows.

Garden officials, looking at advance sales of $40,000 at a $16.50 top, predicted attendance of 18,000 and a gate of $100,000.

"As far as I could learn in New York," said Gene, "most of the pros have started cutting down on the clubs, practicing with the 14 they will use next year." He already has reduced his accustomed bag of 22 clubs to the 14 limit that goes into effect in 1938.

Sarazen believes it will take more than a year for the younger professionals to adjust themselves to the restriction.

"The old timers will have a distinct advantage in the 1938 national open. The younger fellows have been accustomed to letting the club do the swinging."

"Now, with the half clubs discarded, they'll have to learn to make two shots with the same weapon."

"They'll have to cultivate the skill necessary to 'choke' the club a bit on the mashie shot, for instance, where they previously pulled out a 5½ iron and fired away."

Bartell to Sign With N. Y. Giants

OAKLAND. (AP)—Providing certain changes are made in his contract, Shortstop Dick Bartell will sign for 1937 with the New York Giants when he meets Manager Bill Terry in Havana, Cuba, next month, he said here today.

Bartell denied he's a holdout but indicated the contract he received from the Giants is not wholly satisfactory. His brilliant infield play and batting helped the Giants win the National league pennant last year.

Pirates Heading Toward California

PITTSBURGH. (AP)—Battery-men of the Pittsburgh national league baseball team will head for San Bernardino, Calif., shortly to begin in shape for the 1937 season, club officials announced today.

The management also said Manager Harold "Pie" Traynor's coaching staff had signed contracts. It includes Honus Wagner, Jewel Ens and Johnny Gocho.

Notre Dame and Butler basketball teams have been meeting since 1909.

World's 'Meanest Horse' in Action

The king of buck, Five Minutes to Midnight, discloses in this graphic picture how he acquired the title "world's meanest horse." All four feet of the tankard, he unscrewed Ray Mavity, of Helena, Mont., just as the shutter clicked at the Denver rodeo. A moment later Mavity rolled in the arena, dethroned like nearly all cowboys who aspire to tame "Old Five." (Associated Press Photo)

PASTOR ENDS WORK FOR BOMBER

NEW YORK. (AP)—Whether he's a lamb being led to the slaughter or a conqueror marching to triumph, Bob Pastor is through preparing for Friday's bout of 10 rounds or less with Joe Louis in Madison Square Garden.

Pastor is one of the few who argues he has a chance of whipping the Dark Destroyer from Detroit. He wound up his training yesterday and announced he was ready to stand or fall on the work completed—and that he expected to be standing at the finish.

Lucky to Last

The burly, dark-haired youngster who used to tear opposing lines apart as fullback on a great New York university football team, voiced only one protest: "I'm tired of all these guys telling me how to lick Louis," he said. "I know what I'm going to do, and I'll do it Friday night."

In spite of the dire predictions of the experts, who agree he will be lucky to last a round, Pastor has maintained a cocky sort of confidence. He's a 10 to 1 shot, but the fans remember that was the quotation against Max Schmeling when he whipped Louis last summer.

Predict 18,000

Those who saw him against Eddie Sims, who was knocked out in a round by Louis last December, figure Bob has just one chance. Against Sims he hit the deck five times, bounced up and kept on throwing punches until he earned a draw. The theory is that if he wades in there swinging, he may land first and land hard enough to stop Louis, or at least take some of the dynamite out of the Bomber's blows.

Garden officials, looking at advance sales of $40,000 at a $16.50 top, predicted attendance of 18,000 and a gate of $100,000.

ARMY SHOOTERS GET NEW BOSS

VAN NUYS. (AP)—Major Claudium M. Easley, one of the American army's best rifle and pistol shots, is packing up to go East tomorrow.

He is going to see what he can do about having an infantry team win the national matches at Camp Perry, Ohio, this year.

The major gives up his company of the Los Angeles district, Civilian Conservation corps, to be bound for Fort Benning, Ga., to take charge of the fortunes and destinies of the infantry rifle and pistol teams.

Bill Radunich and Ed Nelson accounted for the Santa Clara overtime points after the regular overtime of play ended with the score tied at 32-32 last night.

LAJOIE SAYS COBB, GEHRIG GREATEST

LAKE WORTH, Fla. (AP)—Napoleon Lajoie, late addition to baseball's hall of fame, says the "breaks" had a big part in gaining a niche for him.

"It's a wonderful game, but you have to have the luck, and the breaks to make the most of it," said the 61-year-old former star, who compiled a life-time batting average of .338 and a fielding mark of .966.

"I took chances," he explained. "I tried to figure the pitcher, watch his throw and then steal a base."

"Because I got away with it successfully everything was fine. But if I hadn't, they would have called me a hum instead."

Without hesitancy, "Nap" named the players he considered the greatest of the past and the present.

"It's easy. Nothing to it. For the past, you may say Ty Cobb. There is the player who gave the most to the game, inasmuch as Ty broke more records for speed, hitting and consistent playing in the old days than any of them."

"As for today's outstanding player, I select Lou Gehrig, the first baseman of the Yankees. He has a record of 12 years of consistent baseball, every game a consecutive game. That takes good playing, along with the breaks and luck."

HORSE OWNER JOINS MOVE ON BURKE

SACRAMENTO. (AP)—Charles E. Cooper, owner and breeder of thoroughbred race horses in San Diego county today joined in the charges filed with Governor Merriam seeking the removal of William F. Burke, chairman and W. P. Roth, member of the California horse racing board.

Cooper says he has invested more than $500,000 in horse ranches, breeding farms, training grounds and race horses and that he wishes to protect his investment.

In a petition in intervention Cooper says he desires to adopt as his own charges made by Norman W. Church, who also is an intervenor in the case.

The original charges were filed by Thomas W. Simmons, Roy F. Wilcox and J. I. Maddux asserting that Burke and Roth have shown discrimination, unfairness and incompetency in their administration of horse racing; that Burke because of a close association in the activities of the Santa Anita track and friendship for it has not been able to deal fairly with other tracks.

Roth, the complainants declare, is dominated by Burke, has failed to attend many meetings as a board member, and with Burke, has not carried out the spirit and intent of the horse racing law particularly as to the encouragement of horsebreeding through racing at county fairs and the smaller tracks.

SAN DIEGO. (AP)—Bill Lane, owner of the San Diego club in the Pacific coast league, was on an Arizona journey today which baseball circles said may end in his purchase of the Phoenix franchise in the Arizona-Texas state circuit.

Lane said it was only a "pleasure trip." Friends insisted he would buy the Phoenix club if he can get a favorable deal. It would be used as a San Diego farm.

HOPPE STILL CUE CHAMP

CHICAGO. (AP)—Willie Hoppe of New York, for more than 30 years the No. 1 all-around man of billiards, held that position today in his 2500-point match with Jake Schaefer of Chicago for a $1000 side wager and the world's 28.2 ballline billiard championship.

Hoppe, exhibiting the cool nerve and perfect stroke that have made him one of the game's greatest all time stars, held a total lead of 500 to 441 over Schaefer as the result of a late-inning rally in the second block, played last night.

Trailing by 98 points when the block opened, Hoppe collected 175 points in four consecutive innings to take the lead and then went out in the 33rd inning with an unfinished run of 17. His high cluster was 73. Willie, the best Schaefer could do was 17.

NEW OFFICER FOR COUNTY ADVISED

Orange county likely will have a new officer in the near future. He will be the director of the coordinating council of Orange county.

Members of the board of supervisors yesterday afternoon turned interested and sympathetic ears to a request from leaders in the movement to reduce juvenile delinquency that such a position be created and the salary paid out of county funds.

J. A. Cranston, member of the Santa Ana council, outlined the work the local council has done in the past year. He said the council is prepared for each high school district, meaning there would be 13 of them, with an executive committee comprised of a representative of each.

Other parts of the county are prepared to start organization work, Cranston said, but someone must be in an executive position to head the work.

Judge H. G. Ames, superior court official in charge of juvenile work, endorsed the program, saying the financial gains which could be made by decreasing delinquency are great, but not equal to the moral and spiritual value of the work.

Amelia in Doubt On World Jaunt

LOS ANGELES. (AP)—Amelia Earhart, noted woman pilot, said today "I can not confirm at this time" published reports that she would attempt a "round-the-world flight" this spring in her $50,000 "flying laboratory."

"I have no special flying project in mind right now and nothing definite to announce," she declared.

"If the newspapers keep on planning for me to circumnavigate the globe, it might give me an idea, however," she added with a smile.

Name New Dealers Here for Pontiac

Bartelson and Wilson, newly-appointed dealers in Santa Ana for Pontiac, show the car (above) used by Harry C. Lassen, San Jose resident, who took his family and their 1936 Pontiac car on a 35,000-mile tour of Europe last year. They visited 28 countries and one of the first stops in each country was to take out a year's membership in the national automobile club so that Lassen could put the club emblem on his radiator. Here is the car as it looked when they returned home.

APPROVE SOUTH MAIN PROJECT

Eventually, the South Main street extension to Corona Del Mar may be completed.

Yesterday afternoon the board of supervisors gave the program impetus by approving a new WPA construction project, calling for a total expenditure of $114,069 for construction of 1.6 miles of roadway. The project now goes to WPA for approval.

The section of roadway involved in the project runs between Newport avenue to Corona Del Mar. The federal government will contribute $93,800 on the project, Orange county $20,269, of which nearly $13,000 is for rental of county equipment. Construction of the roadway unit will provide 200 men work for six months.

Supervisor Steele Finley said, "they are monkeying along on that project in a manner which would give a man the 14-year itch." He indicated that he would like to see the job finished.

Appointment of A. Bartelson and H. T. Wilson, by the Southern California distributors for the Pontiac Motor Company, as dealers in Santa Ana, has been announced here.

Both Bartelson and Wilson are from Iowa where they engaged in the automobile business for many years. Since his appointment Bartelson has purchased a home at 1108 Lowell street, and moved into it with his wife and two children. Wilson, his wife and daughter, are living in an apartment at 1009 1/2 North Broadway, pending location of a permanent home in the city.

Prior to coming to Santa Ana Bartelson was a General Motors dealer in Iowa for 10 years, and Wilson was connected with the automotive parts, accessories and equipment business for the past 20 years.

The new dealers are installing a modernly equipped shop at 310 East Fifth street, where a full line of genuine Pontiac parts will be carried and a complete and expert maintenance service will be offered to automobile owners.

The name Alaska is derived from an Eskimo word meaning "great country."

ANTI-PICKET LAW SCORED

Another demand that the county repeal its anti-picketing law was made of the board of supervisors yesterday afternoon by Barbara Brooks, Cossa Mesa.

Mrs. Brooks charged that the law is not constitutional; that the law has never been fairly discussed; that the strike and boycott are the only weapons of labor; that the law is a slavery measure.

Members of the board listened to her talk, read from a prepared statement, but took no action, remaining silent after she had finished.

These cars are now on display at the showrooms of the L. D. Coffing Co., 311 East Fifth street, Santa Ana.

NURSES' HOME APPROVED

Plans and specifications for the new $17,000 dormitory and nurses' quarters at the Orange County hospital were accepted by the board of supervisors yesterday afternoon.

Architect Everett Parks presented the plans to the supervisors, who approved the program of construction. The board will advertise for bids.

The building will be 41 by 90 feet, two stories and capable of being extended if necessary. It was specified that as much Orange county labor and materials as possible be used in the construction work, which will get under way after bids have been received and contract awarded.

Survey Plan Is Not Boondoggling

A controlled survey of Orange county was suggested to the board of supervisors yesterday afternoon by County Surveyor W. K. Hillyard.

The board of supervisors approved the plan, to be submitted to the state planning commission for inclusion in proposed projects which may be undertaken in the next six years.

Hillyard said the plan is to make an extensive survey of the county, determining boundary lines of all kinds. He said the program would bring about $6000 a year to the county at no expense to the county. "Is it boondoggling?" enquired Supervisor N. E. West.

"Oh, no," Hillyard replied, "it would be an outright grant."

FAIL TO NAME WATER GROUP

Members of the board of supervisors failed to name members of the special water committee which is to make an exhaustive study of the water problems of the county, when the board met yesterday afternoon.

The matter of naming the appointees on the committee of seven was delayed for a week on request of Supervisor N. E. West. The committee was authorized at the request of the Orange County Water district and the Orange County Farm bureau after the matter of determining beneficial use of underground water had been discussed.

the world's Christian Fundamental association.

BOND PURCHASE PLAN REVIVED

Proposal of Orange county's purchasing bonds instead of putting county money in banks at one per cent on notice and 1/2 per cent on checking accounts bobbed up again yesterday afternoon at the supervisors' meeting.

District Attorney W. F. Menton ruled yesterday afternoon that the county could not use special funds set up in the budget for other purposes.

The matter first was suggested by County Treasurer Terry E. Stephenson, who suggested that the supervisors, after issuing bonds on the district, sell them on the open market and then buy some of them back to secure the interest on them.

Supervisor N. E. West requested the district attorney to deliver a written opinion on the matter at the next meeting of the board of supervisors, which will be done.

PREDICTS HUGE JUMP IN CARS

SACRAMENTO. (AP)—If the present rate of increase in the number of automobiles in California is continued, within a few years Los Angeles county will have as many cars as the entire state has now, Earl Kelly, director of public works, told the governor's council this week.

Pointing out that California now has two and a quarter million cars, Kelly said that if the rate increase continues, the state will surpass New York next year in the number of privately owned vehicles.

TUBBS URGES SHIPPING MORATORIUM ON FROZEN CITRUS FRUIT

COOPERATION OF SELLERS IS SOUGHT

Time Needed to Learn Condition of Crop
After Freeze

Effect of emergency regulations on shipment of citrus fruits damaged by the recent freeze should bring about a moratorium in shipments.

So Agricultural Commissioner D. W. Tubbs stated today in a comprehensive outline of the marketing situation in Orange county. "Obviously," he said, "the effect of emergency regulations should be to bring about a moratorium in shipments until such time as packing house field men can determine the condition of fruit in various groves."

Forego Picking
"If fruit is injured beyond the tolerance it will be necessary for growers to forego picking until such time as external appearance or actual internal drying make grading in the packing house a possibility."

"Fortunately for Orange county, our industry is largely the production of summer oranges and by the time these are ready for marketing it will be possible in many cases to separate out severely damaged fruit to leave a remainder in which the injury does not exceed the tolerance allowed by law for marketing as fresh fruit."

"Perhaps also by that time we will see installed in many of the packing houses the fluorescence method of grading as suggested in the fall of 1933 by your commissioner."

Prevent Deception
"We believe it is the desire of the industry to maintain the good name of the California citrus business in local and interstate markets and to prevent the deception involved in the shipment of fruits which may appear excellent but prove to be of poor internal quality."

"It must be obvious that the accomplishment of this task can only be gained by a full and willing cooperation of all growers and packers. Every California grower must realize his responsibility in this emergency and must not expect his packer or packing house manager to jeopardize the interests of all by packing a single lot of unsatisfactory fruit."

APPROVE FLOOD CURB PLANS

A $92,048 flood control project for the Laguna canyon will be submitted to the Public Works administration by Orange county. Meeting yesterday afternoon, the board of supervisors authorized Flood Control Engineer M. N. Thompson to submit the project to government authorities.

Orange county's share of the cost will be $50,627; the government paying the balance. The project will be launched after government officials have approved the work program.

The project will give work to 60 men for six months, and would protect a large area from flood damage, Thompson said.

Papal Post's Arduous Daily Activities Drive Its Occupant at Exhausting Pace

Story of The Popes

STUDIES VATICAN PROBLEMS

HOLDS AUDIENCES

POPE LEADS BUSY LIFE—Here are some of the activities comprising a typical day in the reign of Pius XI.

(Third in a Series)
By GEORGE C. JORDAN

VATICAN CITY. (AP)—Whoever succeeds Pope Pius will find being pontiff an arduous task, with long hours of fatiguing work seldom appreciated by the average layman who sees His Holiness borne comfortably into St. Peter's basilica on a special throne for the great occasions.

While most of the men in line for the honor have won their way there by long years of work, cases have been known of cardinals pleading with their colleagues to spare them the overwhelming responsibilities of this spirit-wearing task.

Aside from the weight of the necessity for making final decisions in grave questions concerning the faith and duties of 300,000,000 people, the physical strain on the pontiff's strength is great.

Typical Day

Until his illness, Pius, during most of the years of his pontificate, has arisen to say mass at 6:30 or 7 o'clock. A light breakfast afterward carried him until 2:30 in the afternoon. Press of work often held it up until 3 or 4 o'clock. His final meal came anywhere from 10 to 11 at night.

When well, routine work begins about nine when he receives the papal secretary of state to deal with the more important international affairs. There follow audiences with the cardinals resident in Rome, heads of the various church departments, archbishops and bishops reporting on their dioceses, then diplomatic representatives accredited to the Holy See, and finally public audiences before luncheon.

Spares Exertion

In addition, he listens to piles of correspondence read by his secretaries, dictates answers, hears news reports, works out apostolic letters and encyclicals, confers with lay dignitaries from all parts of the world, and officiates at the installation of radio and many other improvements he has brought to the Vatican.

Time for reflection has to be found, besides, for even though astute helpers dig out the facts upon which decisions are based, the librarian pope studies meticulously their voluminous reports. That he considers them in detail is shown in the times he returns these reports for revision.

The next pope may profit by some of the devices by which Pius has hoarded his strength for work. In his last years the latter has given up virtually all exercise, although in his youth he was an athlete, famed as a mountain climber. A weekly auto ride in the Vatican gardens replaced his habitual daily walk. Elevators were installed in the palace to save climbing steps.

Lives Abstemiously

After the settlement of the "Roman question," liberating the "prisoner of the Vatican," Pius

ROAD EMPLOYEES IN PROTEST

Employees of the county road department want full dinner pails, not half-full dinner pails.

That's what a delegation of six road employees told members of the board of supervisors yesterday in asking for consideration of their situation which has resulted from staggering of work among the road employees.

The situation was explained by Supervisors Willard Smith and N. E. West, whose particular districts are affected at this time, although the entire county road department eventually will face the same situation which has resulted from a depleted road budget.

Smith said he thought it was better to put the men on half time for a while rather than to lay all of them off for a time. The action has become necessary in order to extend the road budget through the present fiscal year, he said. Forty-eight men are affected.

has spent a number of summers at Castel Gandolfo. His successor will be able from the start to avoid the tiring Roman summers.

Prelates emphasize, however, that Pius has not pampered himself. A cigar smoker for years, he abstained rigidly from the moment of his election as pope. He has held his diet to what he needed to keep up. Even the Castel Gandolfo relief he did not grant himself until 1934, five years after he had ended the traditional "imprisonment" of his office.

Pius XI's attitude toward work is revealed in his hope, expressed to a prelate, that he may "die at the breach"—busy.

Tomorrow: Procedure When Pope Dies.

Breakfasters to Hear Accordion

Breakfast club members who attend the meeting next Thursday morning at the Main street cafe will be favored with accordion selections by Mrs. May Weyer, according to Ned Cook, who has charge of the program.

In addition to the accordion numbers Les Phillips will play the saxophone. The performers are sponsored by the Blue Note Music company. President Ed Cochems said today the Breakfast club has a record for punctuality—it starts on time and finishes on time. Guests are welcome.

K. C. Group Will Attend Council

Local Knights of Columbus, including George Nash, Joe Moralic, Ernest Vosskuhr, Clyde Ashen, George Ravenscamp, and Henry Stanley, were to attend a meeting of the Los Angeles council last night.

Joseph J. Rosborough, of Oakland, state deputy of the organization, addressed the meeting. He is touring Southern California in a Knights of Columbus campaign against Communism, and will appear before the Santa Ana lodge next month.

JOHNSON HELPS HARBOR PLAN

Senator Hiram Johnson will do everything in his power to see that the government appropriates money for the maintenance of Newport harbor.

The United States senator from California so informed the board of supervisors in a letter received yesterday in reply to a request made by the board recently that he assist in the matter.

Supervisors yesterday passed a resolution to comply with regulations of technical nature regarding combination of the La Brea and West Anaheim PWA storm drain projects, already finished. Supervisors discussed the gravel contract of the county but no action was taken. For the past 10 years the board has been purchasing gravel from L. D. Reynolds.

County Supervisor W. K. Hillyard presented a petition of owners of 9½ lots out of 40 in Buena Park, the owners seeking inclusion in Orange County Water Works No. 2. The petition not having the required signatures of half the property owners, the matter was tabled.

REAL ESTATE MEN LISTEN TO CHIEF

Fifty realtors from the twelfth district gathered in the Green Cat cafe here last night to hear Eugene Dayton, Salinas, president of the California Real Estate association, talk.

It was the first time that the state president paid a visit to this city, and probably will be the only time he will visit here this year. Dayton, who has served as president of the California Elks association and of the Salinas rodeo, discussed problems of interest to real estate dealers last night.

The program of the state realty association, embracing education of brokers and raising of the standards of the business, fighting legislation which would impose unfair taxes on real estate and retention of the state sales tax, was outlined by the speaker.

Another honored guest was Glenn Willaman, Los Angeles, secretary of the state association. W. F. Croddy, Santa Ana, vice president of the district, presided at the meeting. President Earl B. Hawks of the local realty board welcomed the guests from Los Angeles, Montebello, Whittier, Orange, Anaheim, Fullerton, Santa Ana, Newport Beach and Laguna Beach.

SAN DIEGO. (AP)—The Grace liner Santa Paula was enroute to New York today with 135 passengers. The vessel took on the passengers at Ensenada, Lower California, to avoid being tied up by the maritime strike in a U. S. port.

Mitchell Gets Report of Jury

Supervisor John Mitchell got his hands on a grand jury report yesterday. County Clerk Joe Backs tossed it to him at the board session this morning.

"It's funny, handing this report over to me," Mitchell remarked with a hint of humor.

Chairman Willard Smith and other members of the board laughed.

"Well, I ought to be the one to get it," Mitchell opined, "as long as I'm the one that got spanked." So he took the report and read it. Supervisor N. E. West remarked that if the grand jury values its report, it should furnish a copy to each member of the board of supervisors. But one copy was sent to the board.

Irvine Park to Get Scenic Road

Deed for a new road to be constructed above Irvine park was accepted by the board of supervisors yesterday afternoon.

Road Superintendent A. A. Beard told the board that under a current WPA project a bridal trail and 60-foot scenic drive are to be constructed above the park, and that it is necessary for the board to accept title to the amount of property required for the road and bridal trail.

Society Goes in for Brevity

MILWAUKEE. (AP)—The name of an Austro-Hungarian sick benefit society here has been shortened—but it's still a mouthful.

Henceforth the Oesterreichisch-Ungarischer Krankenunterstützungsverein will be known as the Oesterreich-Ungarischer Krankenunterstützungs Verein.

NEW ROAD OIL POLICY SET BY BOARD

It isn't likely that Orange county will have any more trouble about its road oil.

New detailed specifications on purchase of county road oil, which represents the biggest expenditure of the county in maintenance of roads, were adopted by the board of supervisors yesterday afternoon.

The specifications were presented by Road Superintendent A. A. Beard.

Specifications say that a test report shall be furnished by the vendor for oil showing the quantity, amount of water and sediment, viscosity, and asphalt content of the fuel oil contained in the tank. A copy of the test report must be mailed to the county road department.

From now on the board of supervisors will make the purchases of the road oil, and not the purchasing agent, supervisors said. The motion adopting the specifications, made by Supervisor John Mitchell and seconded by Harry Riley, provided that the board advertise for bids for furnishing road oil to the county during the calendar year of 1937.

The specifications, in great detail, deal with required quality of 60-70 road oil for SC-4 75-85 asphaltic oil, 90-95 asphaltic road oil and methods of testing emulsified asphalt.

HELD TO ANSWER

George U. Carter, charged with issuing a fictitious check, waived preliminary hearing yesterday before Justice Kenneth Morrison and was held to answer to superior court. He was released on his own recognizance pending trial.

Farewell Luncheon Honors Mrs. Paul Wallace Before Departure for New Home

Mrs. Baker Is Party Hostess

Honor Guest and Her Family Moving Soon to Los Angeles

The departure of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Wallace and their young son, Billy, for Los Angeles, where they will make their home after the first of the month, was the occasion yesterday afternoon for a very charming bridge luncheon given in honor of Mrs. Wallace by Mrs. George Baker.

Mrs. Wallace is the daughter of Mrs. E. B. Trago, and the granddaughter of the F. P. Nickes, both well known Santa Ana families.

As the guests entered Mrs. Baker's home at 2402 Oakmont street, they were delighted with the lovely tables, each centered with a bowl of fragrant, colorful violets, while large bowls of purple and pink stock decorated adjacent tables and vantage points. A delicious luncheon was served by Mrs. Baker and her mother, Mrs. G. P. Campbell.

Contract bridge was played during the afternoon, with Mrs. Charles Doty winning a lovely prize for her proficiency. A suit of beautiful lounging pajamas was the surprise farewell present tendered Mrs. Wallace by her assembled friends.

Kaufman, Mrs. Charles Doty, Mrs. Hugh Shields, Mrs. Don Jerome, Mrs. Henry Walker, Mrs. Frank Sawyer, Mrs. Lawrence Cameron, Mrs. Ray Crenshaw, Mrs. Jerry Miller, Mrs. E. B. Van Meter, Mrs. J. L. TO GIVE AWAY BIRTHDAY CAKE SATURDAY

A variety of interests among husbands and wives can easily be satisfied with the several different events scheduled to celebrate President Roosevelt's birthday anniversary Saturday.

Particularly is this true in the case of the evening card party and the vaudeville show, both of which are taking place in the Elbell clubhouse at 117 East Fifth street. It was learned today that numerous groups of women are making their reservations for the former, while their husbands will attend the latter, in the auditorium next to the Peacock room.

Mrs. Aldrie Worswick, general chairman of the card party, reported an intriguing new development in that affair, resulting from a meeting of the refreshment committee, of which Mrs. John Tessmann is chairman.

At the meeting held at the home of Mrs. T. E. Stephenson, it was decided that in addition to the delicious refreshments planned, a birthday cake would be in order, and Mrs. Stephenson very kindly offered to provide one. The cake will be awarded some lucky person at the close of the evening.

Comprising Mrs. Tessmann's committee are Mrs. Stephenson, Mrs. George Briggs, Mrs. J. W. Rice, Mrs. Ray Adkinson, Mrs. Robert Tuthill, Mrs. Sam Nau, Mrs. M. W. Hollingsworth, Mrs. V. Newman, Mrs. Joseph Metzger, Mrs. H. T. Duckett, Miss Lena Thomas, and Miss Frances Egge.

V. F. W. SEW CLUB
V. F. W. Sewing club will have an all-day sewing meeting with a covered dish luncheon on Friday at the home of Mrs. Annie Sullivan, 2219 Orange avenue.

BETHEL MOTHERS MEET
The Mothers' circle of Job's Daughters will meet tomorrow at the B. F. McCausland home, 2342 North Broadway for a potluck luncheon at 12:30 p. m.

Take Morning Exercises While in Bed

By JACQUELINE HUNT

Start with a big, wide yawn when you wake up, then twist and squirm and stretch until your muscles begin to feel alive. Now, lying flat on your back, bring up your knees and begin kicking, short, enthusiastic kicks like you are riding a bicycle. Vary the movement as much as you wish, sometimes kicking with your knees held stiffly, sometimes kicking as loosely as an animated rag doll.

Fling your arms up and over your head and from side to side while you kick. Let your head roll about on your pillow. If you are unaccustomed to exercise, you may be breathing fast by now, so you can change to something different. All of these exercises are good for the abdomen, for the waistline, for the posture and also for the circulation and digestion.

Place your feet flat on the bed, most of your weight supported on your shoulders and feet. Now twist your body from side to side like a small baby trying to turn over in his crib. This twist is especially good if you want to lose weight or eliminate pads of unwanted fat around your middle. Stretch your middle section upward until it forms an arch, fall back to the bed, rise and twist from side to side again.

Now keep your hips firmly planted and twist your body from the waist only. After a while try to raise to a sitting position. Maybe you can't do much more than raise your head off the pillow at first. Slip your feet under the foot rail of your bed (if there is a rail) so you will have something to pull against. After a while you will be able to do this exercise easily. Roll about some more, then try it again.

Finally, roll over on your tummy. Supporting your weight on your hands, raise your head and chest off the bed. Dip down, raise and repeat as many times as you wish. This exercise is a splendid one for firming the muscles of the waistline and strengthening those of the back.

CLUB SECTION HAS ENJOYABLE CARD PARTY

Six tables of bridge marked yesterday's party of the Santa Ana Woman's club, Mrs. G. V. Linsenbard's home on West First forming the attractive setting for the informal afternoon which started with a dessert course.

Auction and contract bridge and anagrams were all in play during the afternoon, prizes at the close going to Mrs. J. E. Prentice for contract, Mrs. E. G. Maier, auction, and Mrs. C. F. Crose in anagrams.

Serving on the hostess committee for the party were the Mesdames R. G. Carman, H. D. McIlvain, Lois McVay, Agnes Wim-bush, G. N. Coon and E. J. Grothier.

Chinese lilies and hyacinth decorated the rooms for the occasion, and a dainty dessert course was served before the card games.

Sewing Club At Laguna Beach

Friends in a little sewing club who have met together for years went down to the coast Royal home of Mrs. John Wheeler at Laguna Beach yesterday for a delightful luncheon and informal afternoon with their knitting and fancy work.

The hostess arranged little bouquets of sandflowers for her luncheon tables, in keeping with the beach setting of the home, and marked places for the members of the club and four guests who were invited to share the day with the group. These latter included Mrs. Lloyd Chenoweth and her mother, Mrs. Clark, Mrs. Emrys White, Jr., and Mrs. James Rice, III.

Mrs. Fred Rowland, one of the club members, was unable to join the group in this party, being still confined to her home with influenza. Members present to enjoy the informal get-together were the Mesdames Emrys D. White, W. H. Spurgeon, Harry Hanson, Elliott Rowland, H. B. Van Dien, Bessie Monroe, Carl Newman, C. B. Diehl, Mark Lacy and the hostess.

Mrs. J. R. Kenyon of Anaheim presided over the session after a welcoming speech by Mrs. J. M. Chisholm, president of the Garden Grove aid, and after devotions were led by Mrs. W. B. Cole of Huntington Beach.

The principal feature of the day was a travelogue presented by Miss Leah Fernald of Orange. Mrs. Fernald, who is president of the church, presented a group of menus suitable for church affairs, and Mrs. J. G. Shanafelt of Santa Ana reported on a recent federation meeting she attended in Arizona.

A vocal solo presented by Mrs. I. F. German of Garden Grove was accompanied by Margaret Rogers. The women of the Baptist church of Garden Grove served luncheon to the hundred women attending the session.

GARDEN SECTION AT M'DANIELS'

The topic of fundamental planting, or tying in shrubbery to the pattern and design of the house, was discussed in an interesting manner yesterday afternoon by Ted Blanding, landscape architect, who presented as guest speaker to the Garden section of Junior Elbell. He also discussed the care of frost-bitten shrubs and plants.

Mrs. Charles McDaniel was a gracious last minute hostess to the section, when Mrs. Herbert Strossman presented the group. Mrs. Arthur Wade assisted Mrs. McDaniel in serving a dainty tea course following the afternoon's talk.

A brief business session was conducted by Mrs. Robert Guild in the absence of Mrs. Raymond Terry, leader, and it was announced that Mrs. T. E. McLeod would entertain next month.

Bob Holmes Surprised By Aunt

What started out to be a quiet evening in the home of his uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. I. A. Mercer, at 2408 Valencia street, Monday night, ended as a gala surprise party and gift shower for Bob Holmes, who leaves next Saturday for the University of Arizona.

Bob, who won a scholarship to the university at the close of his first year in junior college here, was listening to the radio in the Mercers' living room when the guests began to arrive.

The fun started when Bob unwrapped the grand gifts which members of the group had brought for this farewell shower, all selected for their adaptability to college life and a student's room away from home.

Monopoly and anagrams and other diversions engaged the party guests, most of whom were relatives of the guest of honor, and at the close of the fun the hostess served refreshments, assisted by Mrs. Max Holmes, another aunt of Bob's, who had aided in hostess duties throughout the evening.

Participating in the good times arranged by the two aunts were Bob and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Elton Holmes, and sister, Kathleen; his grandmother, Mrs. Minnie Holmes, and her daughter, Mildred; Mr. and Mrs. Max Holmes and three daughters, Mary, Betty, and Jane, and Mrs. Max Holmes' father, E. M. Hulet; Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Holmes, Miss Evelyn Richman, Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Blanding, Mrs. Rose Johnston, Mr. and Mrs. Rudy Pasma of Midway City, and Mr. and Mrs. Mercer and sons, Pat and Jimmie.

Bob will drive over to Tucson Saturday with Tex Oliver, completing his final examinations at the local college on Friday.

PANHELLENIC HAS PARTY AT TEAROOM

Several guests shared the evening with Panhellenic members last night when they met at Danigers for bridge and a dainty refreshment course arranged by four hostesses.

One of the guests was a former member of Panhellenic here, Mrs. Ralph Gordon (Wilma Pavan) of Oakland, who is spending about 10 days in the county with friends and relatives. The other four were Mrs. Claude Brakebill, Mrs. Harry Petersmeyer, Mrs. A. Charlton and Miss Katherine Budd.

Prizes for the evening's play went at the close to Mrs. Gordon and Mrs. William F. Croddy in contract and to Miss Katherine Smith in auction.

Candles were lighted on the little tables when refreshments were served at the end of the evening. Presiding as last night's hostesses were Mrs. Robert Wheeler and Miss Lota Blythe of Orange, Mrs. Eugene Hitt, and Miss Helen Kennedy.

DAUGHTER DEPARTING

Mrs. Edward A. Poliak, who has been enjoying a visit in Santa Ana with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank E. Thomas of 409 West Washington, since the holidays, will leave Saturday for home, planning stops in Hollywood, Santa Monica and San Francisco on her way north. Dr. Poliak accompanied his wife to Santa Ana before Christmas, returning north after a short stay.

MARY STODDARD Modern Grandmother Suggests a Seven Year Trial Marriage Contract

By MARY STODDARD

Is divorce the inevitable outcome of an unhappy marriage? Why is it that a man and a maid who loved one another well enough to plight their troth should ever let themselves stray so far apart? Divorce is by far the most important problem we must deal with in our country today, whether the average person realizes it or not. To those of us who come from old-fashioned families where divorce was an alien word; to that smaller group who regretted the necessity of a broken home; and even to those sophisticated who take marriage in progression there is comfort in the belief of a well-known divorce judge that marriage, with the home founded upon it, is the greatest institution in the world.

One of our correspondents who signs herself "Modern Grandmother," thinks she has the correct solution to this great institution of human relations. Her plan would be to put marriage on a seven-year basis.

Here is her letter:
Dear Miss Stoddard: After reading so much in the papers about this contract marriage that was contracted, I couldn't resist the temptation to comment on it. I hope you will find my letter interesting enough to publish, for I would like to hear from your readers their opinions of contract marriages. Now I have a theory—it isn't really new, I suppose—about marriages.

Since women and men change very decidedly in their views from year to year, I think something should be done about applying this truism to marriages. We humans are supposed to thoroughly change every seven years. Now if this is so, I think that we should change mates, also. We could have marriage a contract that becomes null and void after seven years. This would enable the changed women and men to be free and to contract a new and more suitable marriage without the objectionable divorce.

If the person in question had not changed in his (or her) idea of a wife, they could renew the contract. This would do away with some of the divorces and unhappy persons.

I'm really convinced that this is an excellent idea, and would like to hear the ideas of your readers. I am sure that this is a worth-while subject.

Thank you for reading this if you finished it. I think your column is of much real good to people and I hope it continues for many years.

Ironically yours,
A MODERN GRANDMOTHER.

Two Preside At Bridge Luncheon

One of the delightful parties on this week's calendar was the luncheon and contract bridge afternoon at which Mrs. Wade Warner and Mrs. Roy H. Hall entertained today at the latter's home at 420 South Birch street.

Little bouquets of spring flowers were arranged for the small tables at which the luncheon was served during the hour before the card playing started. Flowers through the rooms reflected primarily the yellow tones of late winter.

Prizes in the afternoon's bridge games went at the close of the last round to Mrs. Walter Vandermast, high, and to Mrs. John Backus, second.

Sixteen guests enjoyed yesterday's party, which was one of a series which the two hostesses plan to continue in the spring.

MASONS' WIVES ENTERTAINED

Continuing a custom of honoring the wife of a Mason who is taking the third degree in his order, friends gathered last night for a party at the home of Mrs. Ray Echols, 917 Fairview, with Mrs. Russell Crouse as the honored guest.

The hostess had chosen a St. Valentine motif for her appointments, carrying out lilies, flowers, and table cloths all in the red and white color scheme with the symbols of the coming holiday. Before the card playing started, she served a dainty dessert course at the small tables.

Each member of the group brought a can of food as a gift, and the close of the bridge games these were awarded as prizes. Mrs. Crouse being given first choice, as the guest of honor; Mrs. John Turton, high score holder, second choice; Mrs. Francis Hill, who made second high choosing next, and so on according to scores down to Mrs. Donald Hildreth, who had the consolation prize.

Guests of Mrs. Echols last night were Mrs. Crouse and the Mesdames Parley Smith, E. G. Maier, T. S. Hunter, J. F. Jacoby, George Lippincott, John Turton, Tony Stark, John Vernon, Oshorn Holmes, Frank Armit, Carlisa Dennis, Robert Birkhead, Ray Chandler, Olen Turner, Francis Hill, Lloyd Banks, Coker Rathbone, Leslie Pierson, Donald Hildreth, Paul Eby, and W. H. Wol-laston.

MRS. DIETLER IS CLUB HOSTESS

El Paseo Tiempo club was pleasantly entertained yesterday by Mrs. P. G. Dietler, 1615 French street, when she served a dainty dessert course before the customary contract of the afternoon.

Mrs. Frank Mead and Mrs. L. M. Banks were absent because of illness in their families, and S. P. B. Gillespie was a guest substitute.

Members present were Mrs. E. B. Collier, Mrs. Nannie Belle Lester, Mrs. Carl Klatt, Mrs. Ethelbert Johnson, Mrs. J. P. Murray, Mrs. Charles Borchard and Mrs. Dietler.

Here and There With The Journal's
Rambling County Editor
By T. N. (BRICK) GAINES

DOC HUSTON of Costa Mesa still thinks it's Christmas! You all know how he gets around just before that holiday, urging folks to put up Christmas lights and otherwise decorate their communities?

Well, now he wants to make the coastline a perpetual Christmas celebration, I guess. He wants to place these new sodium vapor lights yellow ones—all along Coast highway.

Or, as Harry May from Fullerton said: Highway 100 Junior.

The Doc's suggestion at the Huntington Beach meeting of the Associated Chambers of Commerce last night was to install these new-fangled lights that are supposed to shine right through fog. Great aid to night travelers, he claimed.

And V. D. Johnson said it was fine with him. Never any fog in Orange, he added!

Secretary Harry May wriggled around a very embarrassing lack of directors last night.

"By no stretch of imagination or any manner of secretarial juggling can it be made that a quorum's present," he said, and everyone giggled, instead of feeling sorry!

And George Reid, venerable secretary from Anaheim, arrived late—almost too late to get any of the excellent meal served by women of Huntington Beach. They finally took pity on him and served full-sized portions. So full-sized, in fact, that George was still eating when the program was half over!

My very good friend Tom Talbert galloped in from Washington last night.

Tom was back there putting in a few good ticks for his crop insurance plan. He also saw the inauguration—almost sat in the president's lap!

Things, he says, look bright for his plan, or for some similar protection for agriculturists.

Our Huntington Beach friend may be famous, yet!

My friend, Carl Hankey—the Valencia baron from San Juan Capistrano—dropped in to drop a tear about his gladiolus.

Carl, you know, has won dozens of prizes, all over the country, with his plants, or flowers, or whatever you call 'em. He has just one patch of ground where they'll grow so prolifically.

And now, in a weak moment, he sells the ground out from under his flowers!

Of course, 25 or 30 acres of oranges went along with the gladiolus, but he won't miss those so much!

What's happened to the new restaurant at Orange?

Even Stan Wilson was a bit excited when someone wanted to put a Chic Sale under the Plaza fountain, but I don't think he's said a word about the proposed subway for several weeks.

He'd better round up Police Chief George Franzen and conduct an investigation!

Credit to B. K. Maxwell, Fullerton newspaperman, for the best-handled President's ball publicity in the county!

B. K. sends out lotsa copy and pictures, and some of it can't help but be printed.

The ball committee made a wise selection when they named that famed fisherman space-grabber for their party!

Ha! Another challenge!

First, Mark Sackett, demonstrator of the Broa Progress, challenges me to a fishing contest, with Doc Glenn Curtis, Bill Hay and himself all lined up against me.

And now Ray Overacker, Huntington Beach city attorney, sends word that he'll race me to the top of Saddleback.

Which, I think, is mighty ambitious of Ray, seen as how he's reported flat on his back in bed, flu, or something!

After reading carefully, I've decided the communication's from Newport!

"It takes a bunch of smudges pots, it seems, to drive week-enders to Laguna, if a news item from that community commenting on the sudden influx of visitors, is to be believed."

"Well, to be fair, maybe it was that way at Newport-Balboa, too, but nobody noticed any unusual week-end crowd around Newport Bay, you see, it is the regular thing. There's always a 'crowded' week-end at Newport-Balboa!"

"Go, if I could just see that Huntington Beach into this little town, that a lot of people would see what a lot of writing it'd save me!"

CALL ON PARENTS
COSTA MESA—Mr. and Mrs. Glen Partlow and children, June and Jack, spent the week-end with Mrs. Deaton's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. B. King. Partlow has just returned from a year in Persia where he was in the employ of an oil company.

GROUP SEEKS FOG LIGHTS FOR ROAD

County Organization in Meeting With Forum At Huntington

HUNTINGTON BEACH—Plans for installation of new sodium vapor safety lights on Coast highway from Seal Beach to San Clemente were discussed at a meeting of the Associated Chambers of Commerce of Orange county in Memorial hall here last night.

George Kellogg, highway chairman for the group, is to investigate ways and means for obtaining the lights from state gasoline tax funds. Kellogg was asked by President C. G. Huston to report at a meeting of the board of directors next Monday evening.

Said on Bridge
President Huston pointed out that similar lights, which are exceptionally efficient in fog, have been installed on the San Francisco Bay bridge at state expense. Need of such lighting along the coastline, where occasional fogs slow down and endanger traffic, was stressed by Huston.

Safety campaigns usually are pointed at daytime driving, and as a result, fatalities have decreased considerably during the day, he added, but night driving remains as hazardous as ever. Therefore, installation of the safety lights probably would be a cutting down night hazards, the speaker said. No estimate of cost of the project was offered.

Join Forum
Following dinner and the business session, the meeting was turned over to the regular county public forum meeting, with Homer C. Chaney discussing "An Hourly Reward for Labor." Mayor Willis Warner, Huntington Beach, welcomed visitors to the chamber meeting.

The next session probably will be held in the Yorba Linda Woman's clubhouse, it was announced.

OPEN PARK AID STATION

Dr. Thomas B. Rhone, first aid chairman of the local Red Cross, served as master of ceremonies, and explained the equipment in the first aid station. The Red Cross purchased the supplies, consisting of a 24-unit first aid kit, a stretcher and leg splint at a cost of $20.

Delbert Lewis, instructor in first aid, presented standard certificates to 11 park employees. They were Fay Irwin, Mrs. Elfreda Irwin, J. B. Irwin, Charles Hivley, Dorothy Panton, J. Panton, William Kingsley, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Redmon, Mr. and Mrs. James Crawford, Jr.

Winter Delays Work on Dam

When the mercury dropped to around zero, engineers were forced to stop all activity on the Bonelli dam project on the Columbia river because workmen were endangered by the formation of ice. Ice can be seen in this picture of a section of the dam. The project is 65 per cent complete and work is ahead of schedule. (Associated Press Photo)

Heartbreak, History in Advertisement for Sale Of Cruiser at Newport

By FRANK DOWSETT
A MAN'S BOAT—A 25' Dble. cabin Diesel Cruiser, economical, dependable, sleeps 8 & 2 crew. Ready for Mexican or Alaska trip 2000 mi. cruising radius, completely equipped, over $500 extra motor parts, tools, radio, instruments, fishing chairs, etc. $7000. Inspection invited. See FRED CROSBY at Bay Shore Yacht Basin, Coast Pier, Newport Beach, P. O. Box 43, Phone 162.

To the casual reader it was just another item among hundreds in the classified section of a city newspaper over the week-end, but to boatmen of Newport Bay it was first page news.

J. B. McNally was selling the Dundee?

True enough it was the heavy duty offshore cruiser, seemingly as new and immaculate as that day in 1930 when it was launched at the Hansen Boat Works. The Dundee was found tied up at a slip at the Bay Shore Yacht Basin, with J. B. McNally aboard looking as unhappy as if he were offering a member of his own family for sale.

"It feels that way," he admitted, staring off at the Coast Highway bridge crossing the channel over which any moment some one might roll and the driver get out and say, "Saw your ad."

Not that the Dundee was his only boat by any means. In his years, numbering many now, McNally has built up one of the largest rent-boat fleets in Southern California, a fleet valued now at more than $25,000 and including everything from kayaks to drive-yourself motorboats. But the Dundee is something special.

Many a movie star, millionaire sports fisherman—and others without the million, but getting a million dollars' worth of fun out of it, anyway—have braced themselves in the fishing chairs bolted down on the afterdeck and hauled the season's record swordfish and such over the stern of the Dundee.

They've bunked down below, too, in beds as broad and comfortable as those at home. There's plenty of room and stability in the Dundee.

So much so that when one of the harbor's keenest commercial fishermen, John Norek, was preparing to build himself a boat big enough to make seasons in Mexico waters as pleasant as well as profitable with himself and family and crew along, he chose the plans of the Dundee, "Ern Too," the Norek boat, one of the largest of the Newport Harbor commercial fleet, was the 1936 edition of the Dundee, they say.

Parting with a real boat hurts. That's the answer.

GROWING PAINS

"A man in my position has to be careful—I've got a father and mother to support."

SPOT ZONING OPPOSED Masterful Marcus Flays Plan

HUNTINGTON BEACH—Masterful Marcus Marcellus McCallen, 1937 model president of the Huntington Beach chamber of commerce, left no doubt in any mind today as to what he thinks of the proposed spot-zoning plan for residential property protection from oil field encroachment.

He does not think much of it. An oil man himself, but also the present builder of one of the finest of the new homes in this oil city, he declared himself utterly unperturbed by the possible prospect of an oil derrick popping up overnight alongside his swank Spanish and clay-tile roofed residence.

"I'll take my chance," declared he with a flip of his snap-brim brown felt just out of the hand-box, the flash of a dollar-size diamond ring scintillating in sympathy with one of the spiffiest combinations of necktie and colored shirt seen in Huntington Beach since Bill Gallienne led the last parade of bathing girls.

"Zoning would not last, anyway," McCallen continued. "If oil were found in a restricted residence district, it would not be long before it was legally open to drilling."

"That's the history of Huntington Beach. It has been done before. It would be done the same way again so why dodge the fact? I'm not a building with my eyes wide open."

"I'll take my chance."

When Linda Marshall, American girl, is "lost over the Pacific" on a solo round-the-world flight, only a few persons know that she has deliberately disappeared to go to Crab Island, where her uncle, Copernicus Marshall, has established a Utopian community of natives and secretly made a scientific discovery of vast importance.

Patrick Flane, supposedly his friend and partner, is plotting to get hold of the formula he has sent Linda to Hong Kong to deliver a message to his friend, Angus Kirkbrae, British air official. She discovers just how dangerous Flane is and enlists the aid of Tommy Drew, noted aviator and adventurer. They fly back to Crab Island, toward which Flane is bound on a private submarine.

In an obscure Asiatic port, a great native junk, which was always lying at anchor, quivered. Beneath it, a submarine fell into place and locked. The junk was a counterpart of the one which so often lay off M. shall's island residence at Hong Kong—the one which Tommy had watched go out to sea at sunset, with two others escorting it.

In a small room below deck, a trap door was opened, and up through it climbed a white man. He was greeted by a furtive-looking Oriental. A small package, wrapped in soiled brown paper, lay upon a table. In a moment, after a brief exchange of words, the Oriental picked it up and handed it to the white man, who tore open the wrapping and thumbed through the bank notes it contained.

"I said English money. It is so. Within a short time, I shall return, bringing you further proof—or, I hope, the formula itself. You have the men ready?"

"Yes, Mr. Flane," came the answer. "How many will you need?"

"A crew of twenty. Five of those I have to remain loyal to me instead of to that blind visionary fool! The others I will get rid of. When I return, have the rest of the money ready, and the formula will be yours!"

Within an hour, a frightened crew of natives had been herded from the submarine and replaced by others, and the submarine put out to sea again.

Flane summoned the five of the old crew who had remained faithful to him. Handing each a note of large denomination, he said:

"As you faithful ones know, this undersea ship can travel much faster than the doddering old one knows. The new engines can take us to Crab Island like the flight of a swift bird. It will be as I have promised. Hurry this undersea ship quickly to its destination and you will have more wealth... double... triple... a hundred times!"

Meanwhile, on Crab Island, Linda and Tommy and Marshall were having tea on the veranda of the villa. The city now seemed to be coming to life, and Marshall exclaimed:

"Our life here is well regulated. We rise at 5, are at work by 6. At 11, the sun is too hot. Then come tiffin and a siesta. We again work from 4 to 6. The afternoon session is short. It serves to put everything in readiness for the next day's work. One a week, all the vocational guilds assemble at the Cliff of the Sun, and we hold a general conference. There will be one this evening. If you wish, you may go with me and listen."

ART GALLERY AUCTION IS SUCCESS

LAGUNA BEACH—Promise of considerable interest in the Art Association's auction of small paintings has been shown with numerous bids already submitted for the group of 80 pictures hung this week.

With still more pictures expected to be donated by prominent artists, the plan is to continue the exhibit under the book-auction system with final bids closing Feb. 27 when the anniversary party will be held at the Art Gallery.

The minimum opening bid has been set at $5 and the proceeds will be used to help defray the remaining indebtedness of the Art Gallery mortgage.

The main gallery exhibit of paintings will be changed on Feb. 3 while the group of water colors by Alfredo Ybarra and Everett L. Bryant will be replaced shortly with a photographic exhibit being arranged by Ted Cook.

DANGEROUS LANDINGS

in that treasure. You shall have what you like among them."

He clapped his hands. The house-boy answered. Marshall spoke a few brief words to him and, a moment later, the boy returned with a lacquer box. Marshall lifted up the cover. Linda and Tommy gazed at the gems they saw within.

"Ah! This is Marshall. 'Here is the ring. This is for you, Thomas Drew.'"

He handed to Tommy a gold ring of simple, crude design—a coat of arms, with a serpent coiled about a sword—Linda with one emerald and one ruby eye.

"I shall hope to prove worthy, sir, of its ancient tradition," Tommy said.

Linda selected a pendant of hammered gold in which the tracery of the floral design was worked out in precious gems of every color. The flower's heart was a canary diamond of dazzling brilliance. Linda held the heavily-linked chain around her neck, and her uncle fastened the clasp.

"I shall take this only," she said. "The old man's eyes lighted up. 'The mantle of the city Ta Hsi Huan Sheng is already falling about your shoulders, my dear. Greed, the cause of all unhappiness, is not a thing we understand in this city. I am glad to see you are not greedy. And you, Thomas Drew, I see you can accept a gift from an old man with the humility in which it is given. Humility and lack of greed! If only all men had those two qualities, I would have no fear that what I can soon give the world would be misused.'"

"But, come! It is time for us to go to the Cliff of the Sun, and you will sit with me on the platform while I speak. In that way, all will know you are present as part of my own house. No one before, not even Patrick Flane, has been allowed that."

Wanted—A Solution!

AS USUAL, the public stands by and gets cracked in the neck while capital and union labor battle over questions of wages, hours and industrial control.

The deadlock in the automobile strike is typical.

Here you have the greatest industry in the nation; reaching into every city, village and hamlet; with a daily payroll of a million dollars directly and much more indirectly.

This mighty industrial giant is tied up by petty, but explosive, charges and counter-charges of one side against the other.

And both sides are breaking the rules, with the most callous of public-be-damned attitudes.

One rule concerns property rights. Under it, General Motors holds title to its plants and has the right to say who shall and who shall not be on the premises.

Yet in some of these plants sit-down strikers have acted as so many armies of occupation, policing the premises in disregard of law.

Another rule concerns that process of representation if a majority exists. But General Motors has declared that it will not recognize any sole bargaining agency.

Maintenance of that position in event of a majority being determined would be just as much a violation of one law as the trespass of the sit-down strikers is the violation of another.

The management says it will not negotiate until the sit-downers leave. The union says it will not talk settlement until the management agrees that one of the points to be negotiated is the union's right to speak as the exclusive bargaining agency.

Each one believes that it is eminently right. Neither will yield an inch.

There you have the deadlock—and the paralysis of America's greatest industry.

And the public suffers for it—even right here in Santa Ana.

One of these days this nation is going to become intelligent enough to devise a solution that is fair to capital and labor both.

When it does—this stiff-necked squabbling between the "big shots" of capitalism and unionism will be brushed aside as so much petty interference with the public welfare—and we'll have a greater period of progress and development than this world has ever dreamed of.

Orange county now has about as much population as Nevada and Alaska put together. And if the populations want to move here, we have room for them.

New Kind of Smudge Oil Needed

WHEN you get up in the morning, look into a mirror and behold a dark-faced stranger peering back—you know for sure that the citrus growers have smudged again.

This has happened no less than 19 times this month in our county.

Housewives are kicking about soiled clothes and curtains.

Merchants are complaining about dirtied goods. Smudgy fingerprints ruin lots of garments.

And practically everyone has a strangled feeling each morning after the night before.

But it's all in a good cause—the saving of the citrus crop—so folks smile and make the best of it.

Don't think that the ranchers aren't doing their best to abate the nuisance, however.

They are trying smokeless heaters. But the fuel ran out recently, and automobile tires have been used as a substitute in some places.

They are trying wind machines. But these are still unproven.

The change to these new methods is costly, too, so naturally it's a slow process to shift over.

But even at that, improvement in the type of oil burned and other changes within recent years have done much to cut down the smoke.

That is the discovery of a cheap oil which would give more heat and less smoke.

A fortune awaits the bright young fellow who first produces it.

California legislators have introduced a record number of bills. Probably testing the law of averages, hoping some of them will be good.

West Should Have Stronger Defense

OUR CHILDREN on the west coast are going to be mighty happy one of these days if we have the foresight now to prepare for a strong, decisive defense against foreign attack.

Our coast guns are antiquated.

Our air defenses are way behind the rest of the world.

Our standing army is about the size of the police force in some foreign nations.

Of course, there is no war in immediate prospect. But it is generally agreed that the Pacific will be one of the most important theaters of conflict in the next one, no matter what nations are engaged in it.

Congress is expected to spend $15,000,000 this year for the development of a stronger west coast defense.

This is sane and sensible. Spending untold millions in the East and neglecting the West is just as foolish as locking one door of your house and leaving the other wide open.

Most popular outdoor sport now is going around giving advice to folks who have the flu.

Whimsies of O. O. McIntyre

The most hopeful of all optimists continue to be the vaudeville troupers.

And some day a historian will write an epic to their fortune during the declining years for which they have been so valiantly marking time.

Waiting for the two a day to be restored to former opulence.

Those dinky hotels in the 40's running off Broadway are largely patronized by the hopefuls—cheerful "piffawners" who live on drug store lunches and make the daily rounds of the remaining scatter of agencies in hope of a spit week in Coney Island now and then.

And edge conversation with bright banter.

Around the Palace corner and in front of the Somerset hard by they begin to appear at 1 o'clock in the afternoon, discussing the good old days of Albee and Percy Williams when a standard act had 14 weeks playing the metropolises. They will never give up. Never.

Nor do they ask odds of society or whine over their shiny serge hats. For them the glorious sun is bound to shine again. And in the sublimity of such faith one can scarcely believe it will be otherwise.

Jimmy Savo, the comedian, is considered the luckiest actor of the season.

Although he is not working, he is paid a star salary as the result of a switch in the cast of "The White Horse Inn." He was slated for a part. But there was an upset and so long as the play runs he gets tra la, his weekly check.

New York's cultural side is pleasantly stressed by the morning musicals that have been held at the Waldorf—both the old and the new—for 46 years.

The impresario is the dapper Morris Bagley, an affably quick gentleman with dove-gray tie and hard-washing devoirs twinkling about like a wren in a hedge row.

He exploits the galantries lost to most drawing rooms. His audience is perhaps the most aristocratic in the metropolis.

Their stock of Murray Hill and those elegant who resided on the avenue's Millionaire Row during its plushiest past. Some arrive in those bijou windowless cabs with venerable grooms on the box driving cobbled horros.

They continue to murmur that the screen's most palpitating handsome, Robert Taylor, is in the corona of eclipse.

The new No. 1 Dream Prince is the young Tyrone Power, son of the equally prominent star's bearing the same name.

Young Power was a bit player in a film or so when he caught a camera man's expert eye who in turn tipped off a director. Tests showed he had everything the screen Apollo needed plus a melodious voice that blends perfectly dandy with a lambent moon and stuff and things.

It strikes me that Harry Hansen, the book critic, in reviewing the series of Coward plays in book form has summed up the art of Coward in a few lines better than most of the critics. He wrote: "Coward knows how to bring his audience up with a start by flicking an unexpected phrase at them."

Ducking fame note: Margaret Mitchell, who wrote the sensational best seller, "Gone With the Wind," wears smoked glasses walking about her native Atlanta.

And having written but one book, and that a record hanger-upper, she is passing up literature for all time.

There's a shabby house off a lonely turn in Spuyten Duyvil that suggests "hants." Everything in abandoned decay—flapping shutters, doors ajar, broken windows.

Passing it with a bunch of roystering the other night, I was dared to look inside. So I did poke my head in but I'll confess and how or a sudden motor back-fire would have added another recruit to the spooks.

And the way I walked back to the car stiff legged as thought expecting a well placed kick was a honey for the comic strips.

The Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON.—Few people paid any attention when Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau and Chairman Miller of the interstate commerce commission slipped into the White House the other day for a quiet little talk with the President.

Behind that visit, however, was a controversy that is being fought to cause wide rifts in the Roosevelt official family. It is over the corporation surplus profits tax.

It happened that the interstate commerce commission, in its annual report, wrote about three paragraphs burning up the surplus profits tax, pointing out particularly that it made the strong railroads stronger and the weak railroads weaker.

In the course of time this ICC report found its way over to the treasury and came to the desk of Herman Oliphant, special counsel to Henry Morgenthau, also, incidentally, author of the surplus profits tax.

Oliphant read the ICC reports and then hit the ceiling. The ICC had dared to attack his pet baby. He denounced the criticism as mean, dirty, underhanded trick.

So to pacify him, Secretary Morgenthau took Oliphant over to the White House to meet Chairman Carroll Miller and iron out their differences.

But that was only surface stuff. Underneath, the ICC still thinks that the corporation surplus profits tax is bad news for the railroads. In fact, so do a lot of others. And one of the big jobs facing Roosevelt is that of keeping his official family together on this dynamite-laden question.

Notwithstanding this explicit requirement, San Francisco authorities have made no move to erect a plant. Instead, the city, in return for a payment of several million dollars annually, has sold this power to the giant Pacific Gas and Electric Company. This outfit does the retailing. Local municipal ownership advocates claim that the utility actually does not need this power but buys it from the city in order to keep San Francisco from erecting a public system.

The Hetch-Hetchy act also made the secretary of the interior the sole judge of whether the city was complying with the law.

ENERGETIC IKES

Until Ickes came into office this provision was a dead letter. Under Coolidge and Hoover no attention was paid to it, despite numerous demands for action. But shortly after Ickes took command, things began to happen.

First, he issued an order ruling the deal with Pacific Gas and Electric illegal. Then, he directed the city to submit a plan for a bonafide municipal plant, warning that unless this was done he would cut off Hetch-Hetchy power.

San Francisco officials submitted a plan—in fact six plans. Ickes threw all of them into the wastebasket. They were not satisfactory.

Finally, his patience exhausted, Ickes got tough.

He notified San Francisco authorities that unless they stopped stalling and forthwith produced a sincere public ownership plan, the city would get no more Hetch-Hetchy power. The brusque ultimatum produced results.

A plan, the seventh, was quickly laid on Ickes' desk. His experts are now going over it to see if it meets the full requirements of the law.

When the lady Pandora opened the mystic box and loosed a varied assortment of mischiefs upon frail humanity, the worst devil of the lot was undoubtedly the mental borer which makes human beings believe that their opposition to their wives is either malicious or dishonest.

Lately I've talked with a group of well-intentioned women who have taken up the cause of a young man who is, they believe, unjustly incarcerated in a western prison.

I, too, feel that this particular young man has grown in mental and spiritual stature during his imprisonment to a point that makes his extended stay behind prison walls not only futile but entirely wrong.

If a penitentiary is designed to reform men and to make them penitent, then this penitentiary has fully succeeded in at least this one case. The young man in question has, I am fully convinced, undergone a mental rebirth that should make him a valuable citizen of the world at large.

The ladies mentioned know this. They have talked many times with the prisoner. They see him now producing, within his prison, work of a type that makes men self-

TINY WORLD WAR

(San Francisco News)

As more authentic news filters out of Spain, it looks very much as if it were wrong to call the fighting in that unhappy land a civil war. Rather, it is a world war in miniature.

Latest figures compiled by a French parliamentary mission show that nearly 60,000 foreigners are taking an active part as combatants in the war.

Loyalist troops include some 12,000 Frenchmen, 2000 Germans, 2,000 Belgians, 2000 Poles, and 10,000 Russians. Rebel forces include 30,000 Germans and nearly a thousand Irish—in addition, of course, to the 24,000 Moors of the old Spanish regular army.

When a civil war gets as much outside support as that, it is obviously that infinitely more than a fight between local factions is going on. The fact is ominous to the continued peace of Europe as a whole.

NOTE ON POLITICIANS

(San Francisco Sun)

A curious illustration of the workings of the political mind is afforded in the campaign against Senator Holt of West Virginia.

This Holt is patently guilty of party treason. Not only did he refuse to fight for the party in the recent election but he actually gave aid and comfort to the enemy. From the party standpoint, therefore, he deserves to have exacted from him the supreme penalty, and the partisans are proceeding grimly to exact it.

What, then, is this dire punishment? Why Holt is to be deprived of the privilege of appointing one elevator boy and two policemen!

In this incident alone is ample basis for the popular folk tale that the chaplain doesn't pray for the senator, but takes a look at the senate and then prays for the country.

Skinny Skribbles

Around and About Town

With C. F. SKIRVIN

An interruptive incident prevented my comingling with my Bobby Burns friends at the anniversary party held at the Elks club in Anaheim last Monday, but the event was not postponed or account of my inability to attend.

The program moved along on schedule and with culinary and fellowship accessories, same as prevailed at a former meeting I attended, the memory of which lingers, as does the introduction of his majesty—haggis.

That is where Alex Walker's face looks like the morning sunlight. It beams with the radiant glow of a Scotch lassie. Walker and haggis have been friends to these many years.

Russ Munro drifted into the office Monday afternoon to leave a tribute to the Scottish poet, as it is the day of the Burns anniversary. If the hard knew anything about this affliction during his day it would have been interesting to read his poetic impressions of the disease, which we refer to not so often in terms of verse but with the gloves and such common day parlance that there can be no mistake as to what we think of it. When it keeps Brown and Watkins away from a Burns party its social standing has drifted lower than a smudge pot.

Open cars are now referred to as pneumonia specials, but it beats walking.

Smudging comes within the definition of a tolerant nuisance. It is both good and bad. There is reason to believe that chemists will in time be able to reduce the volume of smoke so the operation of heaters may be continued in their protection to the groves. A hundred million dollar crop does offer some compensation, even in the face of an admitted inconvenience and damage. There has been an improvement in heaters. Further improvement will be welcome.

It's all right and quite natural for you to want to keep warm, but do not overlook ventilation when you light your heaters. If you do forget you'll quit lighting heaters.

Talked with an orange grower this morning who suffered from the frost but who minimized his loss by comparing it with the suffering endured by the Ohio flood victims. It is a comparatively easy task to fight cold weather. But water is an almost unconquerable opponent.

If you are prominent it is easier to get a check cashed rather than if your identity is more or less obscure. An instance of this kind occurred a few days ago when a check was readily accepted on account of the prominence of the man whose signature was attached, notwithstanding the fact that the signature failed to come close to the authentic. All is not gold that glitters, and every check is not genuine.

Met Carl Newman and he smiled just as if there would be more avocados. I assume that Carl took the position that what has happened is too late to prevent.

There is no truth in the report that Jimmy Utt has transferred his legislative interest to the vital statistics column, at least for pecuniary gain. How can he help it if a man dies? Man has been doing that same thing for a long time. Elijah beat it, but those miracles are too infrequent to pin your faith to.

When the sun shines the damage to your orange grove does not appear nowhere near so large as when the smudge is coming in.

In the distribution of flowers it might not be out of order to offer a few to Bill Jerome for his long official career as auditor, supervisor, civic leader and fraternal affiant.

Oh, well, less than a hundred years from now we won't care about the frost. Maybe we'll want to look inside. So I did poke my head in but I'll confess and how or a sudden motor back-fire would have added another recruit to the spooks.

And the way I walked back to the car stiff legged as thought expecting a well placed kick was a honey for the comic strips.

Newspapers Are Magic Which Opens Doors Of World To You

YOU have found this paper on your doorstep — or bought it from the news vender on the corner perhaps. It comes to you as an Ambassador from the world at large, bringing the magic of the printed word within the confines of your home. Kipling once related the story of an ancient legend which tells that when a man first achieved a most noble deed he wished to explain to his tribe what he had done. The author said, though, that as soon as a man began to speak "he was smitten with dumbness, he lacked words, and sat down. Then there arose — according to the story — a masterless man, one who had taken no part in the action of his fellow, who had no special virtues, but afflicted — that is the phrase — with the magic of the necessary words. He saw, he told, he described the merits of the notable deed in such a fashion, we are assured, that the words 'became alive and walked up and down in the hearts of all his hearers.' Thereupon, the tribe seeing that the words were certainly alive, and fearing lest the man with the words would hand down untrue tales about them to their children, they took and killed him. But later they saw that the magic was in the words, not in the man."

So you see, when you read your paper today you come in touch with the magic which opens the doors of the world. You may chat, for instance, with Cornelius Vanderbilt, Jr., by turning this page. It is that, actually, since here in the printed word you have his opinion of one of the world's richest men, John D. Rockefeller, Sr. Other pages of this paper will tell you of war, of foreign lands — in short, you have the world between the covers of your paper.

There is another type of magic of the printed word — and that is the magic of inspiration! To those of you who are known to the society editor this may not be a vital point. But there are others.

Listen to the cry of "Caliban in the Coal Mines," by Louis Untermeyer:

God, we don't like to complain;
We know that the mine is no lark.
But — there's the pools from the rain;
But — there's the cold and the dark.

God, You don't know what it is —
You, in Your well-lighted sky —
Watching the meteors whizz;
Warm, with a sun always by.

God, if You had but the moon
Stuck in Your cap for a lamp,
Even You'd tire of it soon,
Down in the dark and the damp.

Nothing but blackness above
And nothing that moves but the cars...
God, if You wish for our love,
Fling us a handful of stars!

It may be that some stray bit of poetry, some editorial, or the story of how someone else has won fame will appear in this paper and give courage to those unable to see "the stars of life." Certainly it is an ideal all publishers strive to achieve.

Those who have made this paper, those who seek the alleys and the courts, the morgues and the palaces, do so, not because they are well paid (for it is indeed a strangely un lucrative profession) but because they strive to give something worthwhile to the world. Often the world does not understand and is cruel in its indictments — but this has been true since the days of Joan of Arc. It is really true that often in dark moods, reporters and copy desk men cry out:

"God, if You wish for our love,
Fling us a handful of stars!"

Irrelevant as this may seem, it is yet a fact. Right this minute there are men in overalls watching great presses in dark basements grind out with deafening regularity the news you read—and in the newsroom sits an editor with a green shade over his eyes who seldom sees the stars. Likewise, in the ominous shadow of the penitentiary, along with the murderer and gunman, sits your reporter! All working that you may open your door and find on your step this Ambassador from the world at large!

All of this is made possible by the printing press, which has never been given a more fitting tribute than the one written by that estimable newspaperman, Bob Davis:

"I am the printing press, born of the mother earth. My heart is of steel, my limbs are of iron, and my fingers are of brass.

"I sing the songs of the world, the oratorios of history, the symphonies of time.

"I am the voice of today, the herald of tomorrow. I weave into the warp of the past the woof of the future. I tell the stories of peace and war alike. I make the human heart beat with passion or tenderness. I stir the pulse of nations, and make brave men do braver deeds, and soldiers die.

"I inspire the midnight toiler, weary at his loom, to lift his head again and gaze, with fearlessness, into the vast beyond, seeking the consolation of a hope eternal.

"When I speak, a myriad people listen to my voice. The Saxon, the Latin, the Celt, the Hun, the Slav, the Hindu, all comprehend me.

"I am the record of all things mankind has achieved. My offspring comes to you in the candle's glow, amid the dim lamps of poverty, the splendor of riches; at sunrise, at high noon and in the wandering evening.

"I am the laughter and tears of the world, and I shall never die until all things return to the immutable dust.

"I am the printing press."

So You Work Hard, Jeanette? We'll Trade Ya!

Jeanette MacDonald, Movie Star, Answers All Girls Who Envy Film Idols Their Clothes, Parties, Interesting Work — Says Acting For Screen Is As Exacting As Any Job

Miss MacDonald, Singing Star of the Movies, in a Scene From One of Her Many Triumphs.

By Jeanette MacDonald

TODAY, with a day off from work, I started to answer the mail from fans, which has piled up considerably due to the many days in succession that I have been at work on "Maytime."

In the midst of a reply to a letter from a girl in a large city, I paused. It dawned upon me that here was a letter, so typical of the many which screen stars receive, that could not be answered briefly.

Why not, I said to myself, take this opportunity to address an open letter to all who start their letters to screen stars, "How I envy you!"

Signed by a girl named Mary, this letter read: "Day after day, I sit at my typewriter and envy you. I am a secretary. My work is exacting, but is not a burden, exactly. While my boss is nice enough, he is a hard taskmaster. Everything has to be just so. And all day long I take orders, orders. Do this, do that. So, do you wonder that I envy you your position as a movie star who can be your own boss and do what you want to do?"

"I get to work at 9 a. m. and if I'm late there is that pesky old timeclock to tell on me. And at 5 p. m. I get up and punch the clock and go home. All day I am tied down at my desk to punch a typewriter."

"And what is there to do after hours for me? I'll tell you. My boy friend and I may have dinner together and then we go dancing or maybe to a picture show or a play. Nothing new, nothing exciting like those grand parties you attend."

"Yes, I envy you. I envy the glamour you have, the fame that's yours, the beautiful clothes you wear, the marvelous way they do up your hair; your voice, your career, the people you meet and the easy life that's yours. But, above all, I envy you being your own boss."

"Mary——"

MY ANSWER is to all the "Marys" in the world.

Don't be so sure you envy me or any other film star; perhaps there are things about your life that a screen star envies.

Mary, you say you have a job. So do I. Yours is dashing out letters on a typewriter. Mine is making motion pictures. It's glamorous, however, you may reply. That is true. But do you know the hard work which lies back of glamour?

There are few jobs in this world that do not require work if one is to succeed. The professions are especially hard. Women, as you know, become doctors, lawyers, politicians, and face hard work. But those who stick to their study until preparations are over have more than an even chance for success. The girl who sets forth to become a motion picture star hasn't that chance; statistics estimate that the chances are 20,000 to 1 against that girl.

Mary, you say you envy me my job before the cameras. I do enjoy it, but you are wrong in supposing it is such a pleasant task. It is interesting, but it is most of the time enervating work, under the hot lights. You may sit at a desk all day, but, at least, you don't have millions of watts pouring into your face.

Your boss, you say, is a hard taskmaster. So is mine. And he is someone I couldn't talk back to even if I felt like it, for my boss is the public. He is exacting and not always understanding. He is never satisfied, wholly, for it is not possible to please everyone all of the time. But I, as other stars, like my boss. Although Mr. Public demands and orders, he gives praise for good work, well done. And we stars follow his wishes and wants. That's why we read letters from our fans, such as yours.

Mary, you envy me fame. Fame is good, but it is dangerous. Stars must guard against letting fame rule their lives. If it becomes too much a part of our thoughts, then we ride our own destinies right out of the limelight. An inflated head is likely to leave a big ache if it explodes.

Fame, however, does exact its toll from us. Fame leads our lives for us; you can lead yours yourself. You may go to a football game or a dance or any other place and few will care. But wherever a screen star goes, she must remember her public.

Jeanette MacDonald and Nelson Eddy, Co-Stars of Two Musical Films, Are Soon to Be United for the Third Time in "Maytime."

Miss MacDonald Says There Is Only One Chance in 20,000 for a Girl to Enter the Movies.

You can don slacks and go out and have a good time. I must look presentable at all times. Any other way might prove dangerous to my career; people pay to see me at my best and hear me sing. If anything tends to destroy that certain appeal that it takes years to perfect, my studio's investment in me is diminished.

BUT supposing I do look presentable, or that I go places where no one outside of my friends can see me. There are still dangers.

Supposing I play too long in the sun and am sunburned, as I was last summer.

To you, Mary, that's painful. Maybe you miss work a day or so or even a week. But work goes right along in your office. You have a painful few days, you lose some money perhaps or, at worst, your job.

But when something like that happens to a film star, she is injuring hundreds of others. Her absence from work may cost her company thousands of dollars and keep a hundred or more extras from that day's work. And you can work with a face that is red and peeling, but not a motion picture star. The camera can't be fooled.

If I go to a football game, I must be careful not to yell. I have to sing for a living.

So a film star must watch his or her health. A director may get sick and someone else fill his shoes temporarily, but that can't be done with a star. Daily, we follow a rigid program to keep healthy. It is something all of us should do, but it is only another worry in our lives.

For the same reason, we stars must watch our pleasures. You undoubtedly can stay up late several nights a week. Of course, you won't be as efficient, but you probably can get by. A star can't "get by." Again the camera won't be fooled. Our fortune lies in looking well. We may "owl a bit" Saturday nights—unless we must work Sunday—but we must make up for all of that on Sunday in preparing for Monday morning.

Might I ask another question: Do you each day sit at your typewriter and hammer away, over and over again, such tedious practice lines as "the sly fox quickly jumped over the lazy dog"?

I have my "sly fox" and "lazy dog" exercises to do. Not once in the seven years I have been in Hollywood have I missed my daily vocal lesson. I have my own teacher and we work together daily. You can't be a screen star if you don't continue to study and improve. To stand still is only to slide backward.

For three weeks past I have been released from the "Maytime" set at 5:30 p. m., not to go home, but to go to a rehearsal hall.

There, with a leader and full orchestra, I have rehearsed one operatic aria that I must sing. It took an hour each day—18 hours of rehearsal for one number. Other songs will take longer, some less. Everything must be perfect, orchestrally and vocally.

MARY, you envy me my lovely gowns. Do you know how I envy you the fact that you perhaps can buy ready-made clothes with little or no altering, or, at the best, are fitted for only one or two new gowns a month?

It is no easy task to have wardrobe fittings.

Gowns do not just fall together and fit perfectly. In as much as I wear 32 different gowns in "Maytime," I figure I have to spend 64 hours of fittings for this picture. You have to work more than ten hours a day for a week to get in that amount of time. Some of it is done before the picture starts, but much is after work on the set, during lunch hours or between scenes.

That is not all the time wardrobe necessitates. The gowns must be given photographic tests—while the star wears them. This is tedious work, standing before bright lights while the camera records for experts to inspect the way the gowns will look on the screen. It requires an hour's time to put on, have tested and take off each gown—or an added 32 hours for this picture.

Production schedules control a star's social calendar. How often, at first, did I call up and cancel a dinner I was giving or send a regret to a hostess who had planned on me. Those times were on the nights we went right on working. Not late enough to steal necessary sleep—although it has happened—but late enough to ruin social engagements.

And now, Mary, I have answered most of your "envies." You are right in envying me the beautiful spots in California to which I can travel—if I could only find the time to do so. Somehow, many things come up between pictures. We stars go right on working. But vacations between pictures are so pleasant—that's because we really feel that we have earned them.

You are right in envying a star her position, if position were all that counted. It is a glorious experience to work in pictures, but it also is a lot of hard work. If any of your friends also envy me and hope to achieve stardom themselves, let them remember that. They must be willing to make sacrifices. The path that leads to stardom has more thorns than rose petals strewn upon it, and it is uphill all the way.

THIS IS A SAMPLE PUZZLE

(It is used only for the purpose of explaining how to proceed in solving the Official Puzzles in this Contest. Read explanation below.)

This SAMPLE puzzle, like all of the official puzzles, represents a name. Below each puzzle is an accompanying list of names in which the correct name for that puzzle can be found. For instance, the name for this SAMPLE puzzle is included in the following list:

Mark Antony Charles Dickens Horace Greeley
Knute Rockne William Penn Patrick Henry

The correct name, or solution of this SAMPLE puzzle is HORACE GREELEY. Here is how you solve the SAMPLE puzzle:

Look carefully at the picture. A few seconds study conveys the idea that a RACE is in progress. Remember that word—RACE. Keep it in mind. Next notice the word "HO" being shouted by the enthusiastic spectator at the left. Putting these two clues together you have HO and RACE, or the word HORACE. Now, notice that the dog is growling the sound "GRRRR," also notice the word "LEE" and the "E" on the run-ner's sweater. Combine these clues and you have GRRRR and E and LEE, which when pronounced together form the sound of "GREELEY." Thus, you have formed the name of HORACE GREELEY, the correct name represented by the picture and the solution of the puzzle. By the same process, you solve the official puzzles in this contest and by completely complying with the rules you can win $100,000.00 First Prize.

THE RULES... Please Read Them Carefully

1. OLD GOLD'S PUZZLE CONTEST is open to everybody with the exception of the employees of P. Lorillard Company, Inc., and its advertising and sales promotion agencies.

2. A group of not less than 90 puzzles which will be increasingly difficult as the contest proceeds will be offered for solution. Each puzzle will represent or in some definite way contain clues which will convey the idea of a name. The name may be that of a person, book, song, movie, city, state or nation. The earlier puzzles will be of the more elementary type, in order to assist contestants in familiarizing themselves with the principles for solving this particular kind of puzzle.

3. OLD GOLD will pay a First Prize of $100,000.00 and 999 other cash prizes (a grand total of 1,000 prizes aggregating $200,000.00) to the one thousand contestants who by their submissions achieve the one thousand highest scores through solving puzzles they are called upon to solve under these rules, and who in all other ways conform to all of these Official Rules.

4. The puzzles will be issued for solutions in weekly series of six, and contestants are asked to solve and submit solutions EACH WEEK. The 1st Week's Series of 6 puzzles bears the release date of Monday, Jan. 25, 1937. Each Monday, for fourteen additional weeks, there will be another weekly series to solve. Contestants should solve the puzzles and submit solutions to same during the week following issuance date of each series. In submitting the solutions for any current series, a contestant is privileged to submit solutions for preceding series. Thus, a contestant entering the contest during the 2nd week should submit both the 1st Week's Series as well as the 2nd Week's Series; and a contestant entering during the 3rd Week should submit both the 1st and 2nd Weeks' Series as well as the 3rd Week's Series, and so on. All series should be qualified in accordance with Rule No. 7.

5. Contestants are requested to mail their solutions EACH WEEK, in series of six. The various current weekly series of puzzles, together with Entry Forms, may be obtained FREE at any place where OLD GOLDS are sold, or puzzles and ENTRY FORMS may be clipped from newspapers, magazines or circulars and will be equally acceptable.

6. Neatness will not count. Do not decorate your solutions. Just solve the puzzles in accordance with the rules. In case of ties as many of the prizes will be reserved as there are contestants tied before any prizes are awarded for a less perfect submission; that is, if two or more persons tie in submitting the correct solutions to all of the puzzles then the first two or more prizes will be reserved for them, and these two or more prizes will be awarded in the order of the accuracy of the submissions to a first or, if necessary, a second group of tie-breaking puzzles; the second group of tie-breaking puzzles to be accompanied by a letter as hereinafter specified. In event a second tie-breaking group of puzzles is necessary contestants eligible to solve same will be required to accompany their solutions to this second tie-breaking group of puzzles with a letter of between 100 and 200 words on the subject: "The Increased Popularity of Old Gold Cigarettes in My Community As a Result of the Old Gold Contest." Only in case of ties still existing after submissions to the second tie-breaking group of puzzles have been checked will the accompanying letters be considered, and in that event prizes will be awarded on the basis of originality in description and general interest of the letters. In case two or more letters are judged of equal originality and equal general interest then duplicate prizes will be awarded.

7. To qualify for a prize, the contestant is required to accompany each series of solutions with three OLD GOLD yellow package wrappers, or three reasonably accurate hand-drawn facsimiles. Either will be equally acceptable. It is not necessary to make a purchase in order to compete. A contestant is privileged to enter more than one complete set of solutions, but each entry must be individually identified as entry "A", entry "B", etc. Each entry will be judged as a unit. No contestant is eligible to win more than one prize, the highest prize won by any individual entry submitted by that contestant.

8. Upon entering this contest and by the submission of solutions to the puzzles, the contestant agrees that the decision of P. Lorillard Company in all matters affecting the conduct of the contest, the acceptance of submissions, the making of awards and the measures invoked to insure individual effort in fairness to all contestants shall be final and conclusive. The P. Lorillard Company will establish an individual file for each contestant, but will not be responsible for submissions or communications unduly delayed or lost in the mail either from or to the contestant.

CHAPTER 4

BAREFOOTED, I wandered down the street, and found a shop under the international sign of three golden balls. The owner was an honest son of Abraham, who did not try to murder me when he saw the remaining gold piece. He may have thought darkly, that I'd stolen the money. From his store—partly a second-hand clothing establishment and partly an old "hock-shop"—I bought a pair of shoes, an oilskin slicker, a coat. Change from my last $5 amounted to two big silver dollars, far larger than the little gold piece I'd given.

In a nearby cafe I stowed away a huge order of ham and eggs with coffee and heaping spoonfuls of sugar; more like a pile of sugar with coffee added. Before the Greek waiter—all restaurant people seemed to come from Athens—brought food, he demanded to see the color of my money, which I proudly displayed. A plateful arrived, which I hastily swallowed, and topped with two slabs of apple pie and a bowl of custard pudding. Up went my spirits in proportion to the food which went down, and I determined to look up Spike's friend and land a job.

The bit of scrawled paper was gone. Digging into my memory, I thought I'd wrapped it around the gold piece presented to the second-hand dealer. I went up one street and down another, searching frantically. Seattle was a city of hills, and I'd lost my bearings in the maze of avenues, alleys and stores. It was hopeless, and after hours of walking, I faced the inevitable fact: I was alone in this strange seaport city . . . but with nothing to worry about. A dollar and a few small pieces of silver hung heavy in my pocket.

Cheerful and full of food, I strolled back to the docks, avoiding any ship that by chance might be the Bessie B, keeping out a weather eye for her crew. It wasn't long before hunger attacked again, and another waterfront restaurant took the rest of my wealth. That night a lumber pile served as my dormitory.

Morning came. Stiff and with empty pockets, I turned a corner of the lumber yard to run into the arms of a blue-coated policeman.

"What's this?" he asked roughly. "Where you going?" In broken English and interjected phrases of Spanish, I informed him who I was . . . a first-class seaman.

"How'd you get to Seattle, huh? How'd you get into the country?"

After endless questions, I convinced him my intentions were not evil, that I wouldn't try to burn up the city or carry off the city hall. He searched me for weapons, and found a clasp knife.

"I could take you in for concealed weapons, son—but I won't." Instead, he took my clasp knife. "You better get off my beat." The only beat I knew was a vegetable, and I couldn't see how I could be doing what he inferred. But it wasn't smart to argue with the law.

FOR ten days I followed my old profession . . . sculpturing potatoes and washing dishes in a waterfront cafe. It was a good place to work and think in . . . there was plenty of hot food. I washed every pot and pan a million times, and wondered how to find Spike. Puzzling this, the only conclusion I reached was to sail south again. Rain had begun, and according to the natives, it might never stop. When it didn't pour and drizzle, fog rolled in and folded over the streets like a white blanket.

I began to prow the docks around the lumber schooners. Two- and three-masters looked safer than the big ships. Futile efforts were made to work my way south, with only an occasional meal for my expert kitchen services. My rooms became empty packing boxes, skiffs moored to the piling under the docks. When this sort of life grew tiresome, and I regretted having left the whaler, I ran into a sailor. A husky fellow, all great legs and arms. My luck was in, for when he said I could get aboard a lumber schooner—the Milkwood—I'd been on my way to find a "crimp."

The Milkwood wasn't far down the docks, and the "Third" signed me on for a round trip at $4 a month as mess boy. Aboard almost any sailing ship of those days a galley slave's life was much the same, except for forms of punishment. (From $2.50 a month on the Bessie B to $4 a welcome jump in wages, due to experience.) This coaster, however, served a little better menu and the crew were less violent.

When we skimmed in through the Golden Gate and docked at a San Francisco pier, I watched my chance to again "jump ship."

At dusk I climbed to a rail, dropped to a row of piles, and holed up in a nearby lumber yard with a sack of grub I'd smuggled from the galley. Before me lay the West's metropolis, city of wealth and beauty. Beside a pile of lumber I spotted a gentleman who had "passed out" for the time being, and a search of his pockets netted a dollar in small change. My justification was simple: I was hungry. I began to feel better, and looked for a restaurant . . . but had the misfortune to run into the big Irish arms of the law.

This time no talking could impress the policeman. Where did I come from? What was I doing in San Francisco? What was my name, if any, and where was I headed? My answers were satisfactory to myself, being the truth . . . but this blue-coat was unconvinced. Under some verbal protest in my strange mixture of Spanish and English, he escorted me to the detention home for wayward youths, where I was unceremoniously "held for investigation" . . . being, as they were sure, some sort of dangerous vagabond. As to the last, they were correct; but the only danger which bothered me was the possibility of starving. What was coming? Physical punishment, or a dose of medicine?

An elderly, cadaverous blue-coat loaded me into a buckboard driving south of Market Street into the Mission district, to pull up before a two-and-a-half-story white frame building several miles from the waterfront. I looked around. The grounds were swept clean and bare, with a surrounding picket fence some eight feet high. The entrance of the big yard was an archway with a locked lattice door. I saw no other gate—no other means of entrance or escape. My escort pulled the bell cord, and within a few moments the clamor of the cow-bell which dangled from an iron hook brought the guardian of the manor . . . a curious individual.

ters, usually as "lean, hard-visaged, rat-like persons." The mold of Victorian days had also produced Mr. Smith, a character straight out of fiction . . . a story-book fellow with thin gray hair, a hard-working Adam's apple, generally lean and hard-bitten, with small light blue eyes. My host wasn't a man to play games with his inmates; he didn't look like a jolly man . . . and I began to wonder if I should have ever deserted the old swashbuckling Bessie B. The more I stared at my new master, the more I longed for the safety of my first galley. His stoney face glinted at me: "Huh! A new fish, eh? What's the charge, officer?"

"Held for investigation, Mr. Smith. The usual thing. See you treat him accordingly." And the blue-coat climbed into his buckboard.

My host propelled me into the big white house, and turned me over to a man wearing a large leather apron like a blacksmith's. I was well searched, given a bath, and gone over with a stiff brush and a cake of yellow soap.

When I pleaded to keep my "Blue Jacket's Manual," the attendant said gruffly that he "didn't reckon it would do any harm, and he showed me to a small bare room with a wooden bench, one shuttered window fastened by a piece of timber from the outside. The door closed and locked, leaving me to reflection . . . and a quick inspection of means of escape. I was in prison, and saw no exit. The day began to wane and dusk crept into the room.

For a long time I dozed, until the sound of a key stirred me to life. A big lad of 18 called:

"Time for supper come on out!"

The evening meal was served in a great central dining room . . . at a long table scrubbed clean. Plates were set upside down, a thick china cup on each. Twelve or 14 boys stood in line on one side of the dining room, ranging in ages from 16 to 20 . . . all answering roll call. My own escort jerked his head at me, indicating the foot of the line. I was a "newish" newcomer.

Roll call finished, half of the boys marched to one side of the table, half to the opposite side. The man who had scrubbed me snapped, "Fall to!" and we stepped over the bench to start a racket of spoons. Soup was ladled out, followed by a vegetable stew, weak tea and fresh bread. So far as I was concerned, it wasn't a bad meal.

LATER we retired to a long dormitory, where cots were ranged along the walls . . . above which were a row of tightly shuttered windows. My cot stood opposite the windows, which made escape even more hopeless for me. Somehow, I had to get away. The city, the sea, and boats were waiting; it was a waste of time to remain behind walls.

At eight o'clock lamps were blown out, and soon after the room was filled with snores and heavy breathing. Being there was neither happy nor unhappy, but I must be free. The room was very quiet, except for a boy tossing on a nearby cot. I crept from beneath blankets and began a barefooted inspection of the dormitory . . . Floor boards squeaked in spite of me, but I moved over there carefully toward the spot where a faint moon threw a strip of silver light behind a shutter.

An Old Print of a Typical Barroom in the Days When San Francisco Was "Roaring." It Was Pictures Such as These That Made Pacheco Decide to Run Away From His Home.

The barren walls and rough floor had a weird appearance, like the deserted tomb of some old castle. For a long hour I went over that room from end to end, and concluded the way out lay elsewhere. And . . . the door was bolted from the outside.

It was five days before I managed a scheme to break away. In the large bare yard stood two little outhouses, the type of gray building made famous by James Whitcomb Riley. Luckily, they were erected toward the back of the grounds near the high picket fence which surrounded the "home." Under the porch lay a pile of stout stove wood, and I began to see my way out.

We had two morning recess periods: one for the boys, another for three or four girls who were quartered by themselves upstairs. During each recess a guard walked among the boys, seeing that we didn't get too near the picket fence, and to prevent fights. We weren't particularly a rough set of youngsters, but being held "for investigation" and other crimes was a strain on male youth, and various fights occurred at every recess. During the first of these, I seized a heavy stick from the wood pile, darted behind the outhouses, and began to pry loose three pickets. It wasn't too easy, since each picket was well spiked to the cross pieces. I kept one eye out for the guard who was trying to part the fighting youngsters, and with my prying bar loosened the lower part of several pickets. I gave a mighty wrench.

Nails and wood screeched. I left the length of wood beside the fence and mingled with the boys. No one had noticed me, and I slept that night in expectation of early escape. Repeating the attempt five successive recesses, took me out. For a final attempt I rounded the little houses, clutching my remaining possession—the "Blue Jacket's Manual"—jerked at the pickets and dashed for a sand hill a cable length away.

The first thought I had was "—to the docks. There'll be ships, sailors and some sort of job."

"Being Little In Cambridge"

By Jane Archer

"Being Little In Cambridge" by Eleanor Hallowell Abbott (D. Appleton—Century)

ELEANOR Hallowell Abbott tells the story of her childhood in the golden age of Cambridge, the 70's, when her neighbors were James Russell Lowell, Henry Wadsworth Longfellow, Ole Bull and a host of other people famous in the literary, musical and educational worlds. Here is a charming story of childhood and of famous people, sometimes austere and very grand people, seen through the eyes of a child.

Miss Abbott is the granddaughter of Jacob Abbott, author of the Rollo books. Her father was Rollo himself, a clergyman-editor and friend of Longfellow, Lowell and other poets. She begins her story with the breathtaking an-asm we found ourselves gathered with our elders from house to house to hear "The elect" read from their "works." Should we turn restive under such readings we would be given a box of seashells to quiet us; the seashells came presumably from Celia Thaxter's island home at Apple-dore! If one asked to borrow a pencil it might well prove to be the pencil with which William Cullen Bryant had written "Thanatopsis." If one stubbed one's toe on a hump in the rug, it might easily transpire that no lesser tread than Walt Whitman's fierce stride had raveled that sacred warp! Have You Two Or Three Waistlines? Aren't You Continuing Exercises?

By Adrian Shawn

A SPARE tire on an automobile is quite all right—two are even better. But a spare tire around one's waist is anything but desirable—but two! There is nothing more unattractive, and little that is more destructive to a good appearance, than a thick waistline. And nothing is more attractive than to see a slender waistline, flat stomach, erect shoulders!

It really isn't at all difficult to reduce the waistline. Just a sensible diet and proper exercise. And the exercises for the reduction of this particular part of the body can be done at any time besides the regular period for exercise. Every time you happen to think of it during the day just do this exercise:

Stand as the girl in the picture is standing, erect, with the arms stretched out by the sides. Now, move the upper part of the body from the hips up, from side to side in a sort of swinging, rotating movement. Do this smoothly and rhythmically with wide, free gestures. Do it in the clear fresh air, standing by your window morning and evening. Inhale deeply and exhale—also with a definite rhythm.

Have you ever tried stretching? Have you ever watched a cat? Noticed how often it will stretch and yawn—even a dog does this and we don't usually think of dogs as particularly lithe animals. But believe me, there is much to be learned from the animal kingdom. A cat is probably the most graceful animal in the world. All its muscles are long and beautiful. A cat knows how to relax. And that is a secret too many human beings don't seem to understand.

Spring Suits Are Varied In Theme

By Tanya

IN SPRING a young man's fancy turns to thoughts of his beloved, just as certainly do the thoughts of smart women turn to the beloved favorite of springtime fashion, the suit. Year after year this harbinger of the vernal season is brought forward by the designers and season after season is it accepted with enthusiasm by the woman in search of something new and different. The suits this season are perhaps more varied than usual, more compelling in interest, more striking in the use of contrasting colors, and if possible more wearable and universal becoming than ever before.

The suit which boldly combines two colors, one bright and vividly contrasting, the other black or a deep dark shade is very important. Pictured on this page is a definitely new and most unusual model with a clear bright red used

Watch Manners In Lobbies!

By Deborah Ames

RECENTLY I have been spending more time than usual in a hotel—due to a painting and wall-papering spree that we have been enjoying at our home. Not being any more gregariously inclined than usual, I was hoping that I could avoid the customary hotel gossip that gather in the twilight hours before they go up to bed. Consequently, I sought out a secluded chair, well hidden behind a huge uncomfortable old couch. I was sure that no one would come to bother me and I did so hope to finish my book.

I had no sooner settled myself than two talkative old women came into the lobby, halted in the middle of it and surveyed the prospects. Now it was early in the evening and there were several empty chairs in the lobby—and almost any of them were nicer than the couch near my seat.

But did this daunt the old dears? Not a chance! They spotted me as a newcomer, and headed toward my hideout. With much fuss and puffing they swung the couch about to face me and settled themselves and their knitting for a little chat. I won't bore you with the details, but in the next 30 minutes they learned all about me—my family—my personal opinions and habits!

Most hotel lobbies are large, and have several comfortable chairs and couches in them. It is only polite to respect the wishes of the other guests and stay away from them if they are reading or look as though they did not care to enter into conversation. Don't go up and sit by them unless they indicate by some look or sign that they want to have you there.

With it the model has chosen a small black hat that gives a trim sleek appearance to the head, a thing it is well to watch when considering the silhouette of the spring suit. Her oxford shoes are of patent and suede, combined in a new way to give the more fashionable than ever high throated look. This line in shoes is unexpectedly flattering, and is destined for continued success throughout the coming season. The second suit pictured is also a complete costume, and one that will be seen at many smart gathering places this season. It is the choice of the woman who lunches frequently in town for it is dark in theme with the unexpected note of bright print to lend vivacity and to rivet attention. A soft black wool is used for the skirt and the jacket which has two rows of buttons in a trim line down either side of the front. The print is a dazzling combination of peasant colors, somewhat naive and very brilliant in their contrasts. It fashions the blouse and also the soft graceful revers of the jacket.

With this suit is worn a black straw in a modified visor shape which will be seen frequently this season. Silk cords in a variety of bright colors form the band and carry out the colors of the print.

Ideas from southern Europe will bear watching this season. Already the little pill box hats worn so picturesquely by the peasant men in the mountain districts, have been adapted to modern city life. These will shortly appear in straw and fabric, set off with embroidery and tassels.

They are equally smart with a daytime suit or with the informal dinner costume.

Such unusual accents as braided satin bands also bespeak the widespread interest in peasant-type decoration. These have their origin in the colored woolen braids which the graceful Montenegrans use to balance burdens on their heads. These are seen on a stunning dress of pale pink satin in a very lustrous heavy quality. The omnipresent bolero which is of matching satin is banded in soft brown marten fur caught with velvet flowers in every soft hue of rose and pink.

Lace holds high place in fashion for the coming season. Cruise-going fashionables adore it because it packs well and is equally pleasant to wear and look upon whether the evening is hot and tropical or spent under more temperate stars. Pastels of breathtaking loveliness appear in lace gowns as well as fragile white.

The gardenia dress launched recently is certain to be a summer success. It is divinely lovely in white chiffon. A slim, high-bosomed bodice outlines the figure, and the shoulders are embellished with clusters of white gardenias and their green leaves. This picture of elegance is completed by an incredibly graceful skirt garlanded with row after row of tiny pleats.

Tangy Puddings Are Mighty Fine For These Frosty Days

Desserts Listed Below Are Easy To Prepare; Will Relieve You Of Many Hours Labor

By Jenny Reed

(Home Economics Editor)

FROSTY days bring with them keener appetites—and with keener appetites puddings and the other more substantial desserts come into their own again. When you want to decide upon just the right dessert for some special occasion, you can't make a better choice than a pineapple pudding in which unsweetened pineapple juice and diced pineapple are the principal ingredients. Both of these are always readily available and both are inexpensive, an important point for the thrifty housewife.

Pineapple Pudding With Marshmallow Sauce

½ cup sugar
2 tablespoons cornstarch
¼ teaspoon salt
1 cup canned pineapple juice
1 cup water
Juice of 1 lemon
2 eggs, separated
1 cup canned, diced pineapple
Mix sugar, cornstarch and salt in the top of a double boiler, stir in pineapple juice, water and lemon, and cook over boiling water until clear, about 20 minutes, stirring frequently. Stir into the slightly beaten yolks, fold in the well-beaten whites and diced pineapple. Pour into a well-buttered baking dish, set into a moderately slow oven (325° to 350° F.) and bake about 20 minutes. Six servings.

Sauce
10 soft marshmallows
½ package of Philadelphia cream cheese
1 cup pastry cream, or 1 cup undiluted evaporated milk
Pinch of salt
Few drops of tabasco
¾ cup pineapple juice
1 tablespoon orange juice
In the top of the double boiler place the marshmallows, stir until melted and blend with the cream cheese. Cool. Add cream gradually, then salt and tabasco, and leave in refrigerator until ready to serve. Add pineapple juice and orange juice just before serving.

fat to a golden brown. Spread with raisin-honey mixture. Serve hot.

"She Calls, And Calls Each Vagabond By Name"

Gypsies' Annual Hegira South Has Ended With Highway Nomads Willing To "Give Luck"

By John H. Burnett

Hark! Hark! Hear the dogs bark!
The Gypsy is coming to town!
Some in rags! Some in tags!
And some in velvet gowns!

THUS sang the poet upon observing the entrance of the age-old free folk into the European villages. And in all the country of the Southland during the past month or so the "raggle-taggle" people have been driving their vehicles, scolding their children and dogs, and turning keen eyes toward the lands in which they will dwell like the wild birds until summer weather again allows them to return to familiar eastern trails!

The Gypsies have come again to Southern California in their annual hegira from the northland blizzards and snows to the land of winter sunshine and flowers. More numerous than ever before are the familiar fortune-telling establishments with their gaudily dressed, gold-eared and braceleted women sitting just back from the doorways in those parts of the city where the poorer and more illiterate class the most often pass. Thus do the Gypsies continue their accused nefarious existence, an ancient race, still as ancient and as mysterious as ever, despite the intervening 1500 years which have passed since, historians suspect, the first nomadic hordes of swarthy-faced Jats moved out of Mother India through Europe, into America and Australia, leaving behind them words and customs which some authorities hope will link them with the Romany people of today.

Unless one is able to speak the language of the Romany he cannot expect to be welcomed into anything and all things in his daily workings to make a living—but, he may not allow himself the luxury of publicity! The young woman shown on this page is a Gypsy, and an exceptionally pretty one at that. But she refused time after time to allow her picture to be taken, until at length she was prevailed upon.

An example of the extreme trickiness of the Romany may be cited in the case of my efforts to get a picture of a Gypsy girl with which to illustrate this article. Having become discouraged by this girl's continuous refusal to be photographed, I set out toward another place where I was told a new family of Eastern Gypsies had moved in after recently coming from New York.

I found the place without any difficulty. But the lack of difficulty ceased there! Before the rented building, which once had been a small community grocery store, sat a pretty young Gypsy girl, about 12 years old. She was dressed in the familiar red, yellow, blue and gold so common with the race. Her gown was greasy and dirty, as was her pretty Roman nose and small carmine lips. Her eyes brightened keenly when she saw me approaching and immediately she put out a small, upturned hand, saying with practiced, almost repetitious quickness, "The Gypsy can bring you good luck!" This was said in a tone which indicated that to do otherwise than accept the good fortune was scarcely less than the direst of downright folly!

"How about taking your picture?" I countered suggestively; and I exhibited, for the first time, my camera.

job which was plainly mechanical, and I had paid her 75 cents.

Alas! Just as the reading was finished there came a woman from behind the curtained rear of the room. She was a black-eyed, gold-toothed Gypsy woman, hard to look at, and the mother of the dirty brood! She was shaking her head vehemently at me as though I were breaking some important rule of etiquette or about to do bodily injury to them all! She shrieked one uncanny note which sent the girls and the younger children scotching to the rear of the store into the living quarters! And with them went my 75 cents!

It was so obviously a frame-up that I began to grin, realizing I had been hoodwinked. I, who thought myself so absolutely unhoodwinkable!

"No pictures," I spoke for her, still grinning broadly. "I get it."

"Gypsy wish you Good Luck," she said, still feigning. "Gypsy girl she give you Good Luck!"

THIS is a part of the overwhelming lure of the Gypsy. We recognize in them a superiority over most of us in their knowledge of human psychology. We are drawn toward them, too, because of the inner-Gypsiness of our natures. In most people is the eternal wish to be free, to be wild, to be a part of wild nature, animal-like, if you will,—that causes one's heart to skip a beat upon coming in sight of a Gypsy woman of many colors, of long, rustling skirts, of bracelets, earrings and a shrill tone which threatens of an immediate quarrel. One's heart seems to say, "Like all wild life, the Gypsy is apt to be quarrelsome. And here is one who defies the laws of convention that hold me like a slave; thus the Gypsy appeals to civilization-chained men and women. How drab it is to sit at a desk all day, to sleep in a mere bed all night when Gypsies are walking beside leaf-strewn paths, beside cascading waterfalls, sleeping on bowers of wild flowers and smelling their perfume! Free to live, to love while the convention-bound one is restrained by customs and propriety! No doubt the Romany realize the advantage they hold.

Redskin Rhymes

SIGNAL SMOKE

NO longer do the Indian Braves
Send signals from the hills.
The soil that once they guarded well
The thrifty farmer tills;
His plow has covered hunting trails
That moccasins once made.
The ground whereon the wigwam sat
Feels now the garden spade.
Keen eyes, long before have seen Far down the rolling plain —
The dust of hoofs, or creaking wheels
From crawling wagon train;

And having seen, sent forth the news,
With cunning skill and speed —
With smoke signs writ upon the air
That other eyes might read.

The warning puffs that rose on high
Said, "Stranger step with care,
Who comes in peace, may pass in peace —
Let hostile feet beware!"
The smokes for war and peace alike
Once rose from signal mounds.
Thus flew the news of other days
Across the hunting grounds.

The Pretty Gypsy Girl Pictured Here Plies the Age-Old Trade of the Gypsies, Modernized Only by the More Current Vogue of "Spiritualistic Readings," which Seem to Have Almost Completely Usurped the Place That Chiromancy Once Held in Gypsy Esteem.

In the midst of the Gypsies. They are still erstwhile happy vagabonds! They travel the highways and byways of the world—the freest people on earth! In winter they sometimes settle down in houses, which, I suppose, they despise, to hang their walls with rugs and bask in the mystical light of antiquity.

FOR centuries the Gypsies have defied all the able arts of man to penetrate their shells and to have a look at their true hearts! Today, notwithstanding the writings of Leland, Borrow, Bercevic and others, the Gypsy still remains—the inscrutable Gypsy!

These strange people do not like being photographed especially if they know that the picture is to be reproduced in print. Loosely moral in many ways, the Gypsy who deliberately allows himself to be photographed for promiscuous publicity is immoral. He or she may steal chickens when the camp is beside the moonlit trail when hunger assails; a Gypsy may look into the eyes of a gullible passerby and by chiromancy or clairvoyance extract the last sou that he has in his wallet; a Gypsy may promise

She shook her oval, olive face sidewise disapprovingly.

From the doorway two older Gypsy girls appeared, and behind them three small children raced, scuffled and thrust their way between the girls to a place where they could survey me. Three filthy right hands darted out like striking snakes, "Gimme a nickel! Gimme a dime! Gimme a quarter!" they kept urging me with an alternating rhythm like the pistons of an automobile.

I spent a few minutes explaining that I had come for photographs and was willing to pay a reasonable sum of money to get them. But they all diligently refused.

A shrill call from the inner sanctum took one of the older girls off like a flash, and she presently returned, and by means of certain squirmings and smiles, which exhibited small, white, even teeth,—and sly winks, she gave me the impression that she had at length fixed everything up for the pictures. But, in appreciation, she gave me by this process to understand, how about a fifty-cent palm-reading before the work came off? So, presently, she had read my fortune, a sorry enough
